WOMAN DUMPS LOTTERY WINNER AND RETURNS TO DIRT-POOR HUBBY

BIG LOTTERY WINNER Vic Grover lost the love of his life. "I fell head over heels in love with Vic the first time we met," says Rose Deal

By HENRY WEBB

When her boyfriend won a big lottery jackpot Rose Deal went back to her penniless husband — because she couldn't bear the thought of living rich!

The 35-year-old woman from Long Melford, England, was actually planning to marry lobsterman Vic Grover, 36, as soon as her divorce from unemployed husband Peter, 37, was final.

But Grover's success has ruined her sister. She's now back home cuddling with hubby Peter in the hope of rebuilding their shattered 16-year marriage.

"I just couldn't bear the thought of all that money," said Mrs. Deal. "What would I do with a brand-new house, luxury kitchen, new washing machine, new fridge, new everything?

"It's just not me. I've been brought up all my life. If a millionaire came along and wanted me to go away with him I'd tell him to get lost."

Mrs. Deal doesn't love her husband and openly admits it. But he adores her — and she'd rather have a devoted Irish Dane all the money in the world.

"My boyfriend Vic and I had a much more exciting relationship. In fact, we fell head over heels in love the first time we met," said Mrs. Deal.

"He was just a cab driver but I was going to marry him because I wanted love, not money. All that changed after he won all that money in the lottery.

"It's really a shame because we could have been very happy together."

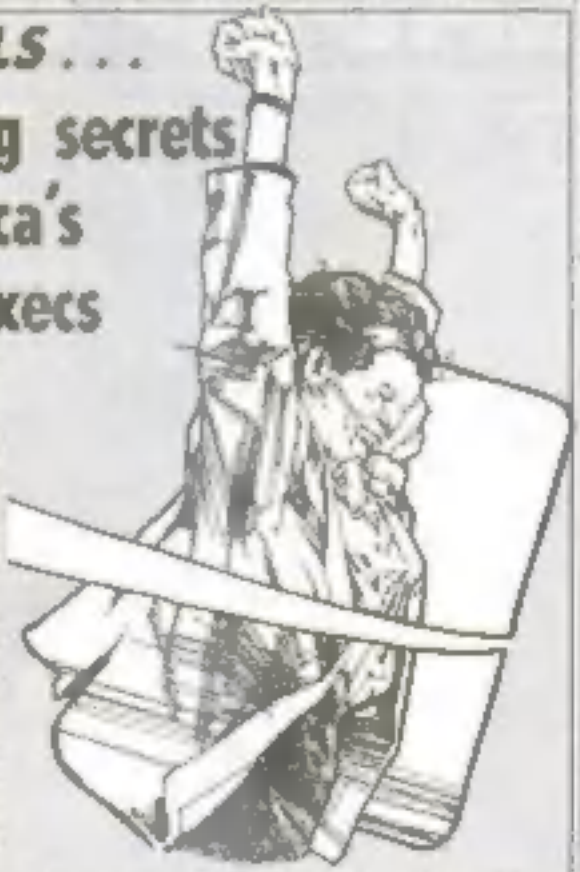
NEW STUDY REVEALS . . .

Surprising secrets of America's top gal execs



The trip to the top ranks of power and success can be difficult for women, but those who make it big share a number of common traits, a new study shows.

"They don't come from happy families," said researcher Rosalind Miles, who reported on her interviews with 44 top female executives in her block-buster book Women and Power (Salem House, 1986). "Each had something that made her feel she had to look outside traditional roles for women to find happiness.

"These women don't want traditional roles, so they become high achievers in difficult areas. They are women of great ability, but it's not their intelligence that matters most, it's their character as it was shaped by circumstances."

Miles isolated a number of areas in which the backgrounds of powerful women were remarkably alike. The experiences, traits and attitudes they shared were:

● Families with a strong female line. The women's mothers and grandmothers were powerful women who acted as role models.

● Females in their families where moms loved housework and taught that being a housewife was not a desirable goal.

● Taller than average. The power females were usually about 5-foot-8 or 5-foot-9. Men — who were often responsible for hiring and promoting these executive women — felt comfortable with them because of their size, which was more like their own.

● Had performed publicly in childhood. The women shared a background in dance, acting or singing — experiences that put them in the public eye and taught them to feel comfortable there.

● Sports background. Powerful women were usually physically active. They had often competed in sports and learned to take their knocks.

● Strong sense of humor. Perhaps because they are in control and feel like they are on top of things, these women love jokes. They are not often resented women are where the oldest in their families, the girls in their families.

Growing up, Ods was left put the group's welfare first.

● Fathers who encouraged them. Fathers of successful women told them that they could succeed at anything she'd rather have a devoted Irish Dane all the money in the world.

"My boyfriend Vic and I had a much more exciting relationship. In fact, we fell head over heels in love the first time we met," said Mrs. Deal.

"He was just a cab driver but I was going to marry him because I wanted love, not money. All that changed after he won all that money in the lottery.

"It's really a shame because we could have been very happy together."

Super sniffer finally gets loving home

It wasn't easy, but a home has finally been found for Jessie, the super-sniffing police dog who sniffed out hidden drugs from secret places for years.

"He's never been a house dog," said Hollywood, Calif., police spokesman Jim Babbitt. "He's trained to just go in and destroy things."

The 8-year-old Labrador was a hero with his fellow cops, but he'd gotten too old to go busting junkies with the Hollywood Vice Intelligence and Narcotics unit.

Even his human partner had retired.

Finally, Jessie was adopted by Det. Peter Salvo.

A TEAM of doctors will be interviewing villagers in China's Kwaichow Province about Fong's operation.

Sheep's heart keeps man alive 42 years!

By DAVID ROSS

Scientists are investigating reports that a Chinese peasant survived 42 years with a transplanted sheep's heart beating in his chest!

"This could change everything we know about heart surgery and organ transplants," Dr. Yao Haiyang told medical reporters in Beijing, China.

"We still have to confirm that the operation actually took place. But evidence we have gathered so far indicates that it did.

"And there's absolutely no doubt that the patient lived for 42 years after he was diagnosed as having a severely diseased heart."

Dr. Yao began to look into the case after a medical team working in China's remote Kwaichow Province discovered the incredible story.

Medical experts to study 'unscientific' procedures used in 1946 transplant

The team found that the peasant suffered a heart attack and died a few days after he was admitted to the clinic. An autopsy revealed that his own heart had been replaced with one from a sheep.

Family members later told doctors that Fong's grandfather, now dead, transplanted the animal heart in 1946 using ancient surgical techniques.

"We are now studying the heart here in Beijing," he continued. "By comparing deposits of fat and plaque in the heart with those in the patient's arteries we should be able to determine exactly how long the heart was in the body.

"That will tell us whether the heart was transplanted decades ago or closer to the time of his death.

"Stranger things have happened," added the expert. "American doctors replaced a human heart with one from a baboon a few years back.

"Even human heart transplants were once thought to be impossible.

"But I have never heard of anyone actually trying to perform one outside of a modern medical facility, much less in a remote village in 1946.

"Before we can study the procedure we must first confirm that it took place. Then we must locate and explain the use of acupuncture mention the possibility of heart transplants," said Dr. Yao.

Hopping-mad hubby says . . .

My wife ran off with a preacher!

By JOE BERGER

Heartsick hubby Peter Lines says his pious wife Maureen refused to have sex with him night after night so she could read the Bible in bed.

Then, after studying the Scriptures for months, Pete's sanctimonious missus ran off to have a romantic fling — with a Roman Catholic priest!

"I still can't believe this is happening," the flabbergasted dad told reporters in Rugby, England.

"I knew she was acting strange, but I never guessed she'd leave me to have an affair with her priest."

Now mother-of-two Maureen and backsliding Father Ed Harvana — who abandoned the pulpit to play house — share a little love nest in Eccleston, England, the British press reports.

"Our marriage was never heavenly, but things were pretty good for the first 10 years or so," the thunderstruck hubby recalled.

"Then, about three years ago, Maureen became a religious maniac. She even took the Bible to bed with her. I wanted to make love — and she would read the Bible instead.

"She persuaded me to have a vasectomy and then said we couldn't make love again because it was wrong unless we were trying for a child."

Nevertheless, when his Bible-crazy mate decided to take religion classes at a nearby university, carpenter Pete, 35, switched jobs and worked nights so she could get her education.

"Then after she graduated, she began getting all holy and thought she was too good for a mere carpenter," he said.

"That's utter hypocrisy considering that was Jesus' occupation.

"She got a job teaching religious classes and things went from bad to worse. I even changed my religion from Church of England to Roman Catholic in a desperate attempt to save the marriage. But it was hopeless."

Somewhere along the line, Pete said, Maureen and her priestly amour met in church and fell head over heels for each other. "Now it's Maureen and Father Ed and our two kids together, and I'm left out in the cold," said the hapless hubby.

She never wanted to make whoopee — all she did was sit there and read the Bible!

ANGRY Peter Lines says his wife Maureen, inset, put religion ahead of romance — until she skipped out with a priest.

Bird lover feeds himself to the vultures

Dead giveaway!

By SUSAN JAMESON

Nature lover Micky Lindbergh was so fond of his feathered friends that he sacrificed his body for them — to provide bird food for a flock of vultures!

The 47-year-old farmer walked to an isolated spot where he knew the carrion-eating birds gathered, then took off his clothes, lay down on the ground and shot himself. Within hours the ghoulish vultures had stripped his bones clean.

"He always told me that he wanted to go this way," said the Welgemoed, South Africa, mom's son Sharn.

"The vultures would have been [illegible] was probably why he removed them."

Lindbergh had been depressed since he was injured in a plane crash in 1974, his son said. One of his greatest comforts was to spend time observing — and feeding — wildlife.

On his 1,000-acre farm he kept a bird bland where he could observe a flock of white-backed vultures, ugly birds whose greatest pleasure is gorging on dead and rotting flesh.

The farmer hated the thought of [illegible] he spoke more and more about death. He said he wanted his body left for wild animals to eat.

"He became less active and found running the farm to be stressful," the dad's son said. "He warned us that he would take his own life some day."

Would-be suicide rams a stranger at 90 m.p.h., cops say

TWISTED wreckage shows the tremendous force of the impact in death crash.

By JOE BERGER

Satan wanted me to die — and take someone with me!

Stranger dies — but suicide driver walks away!

Suicide driver Sam Grimes wanted to die, and he wanted someone to die with him, police say.

So Grimes broadsided another car at 90 m.p.h., killing a total stranger — but he escaped with scarcely a scratch!

"It's one of the most bizarre cases I've seen in some time," said a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., police investigator.

"It's really hard to believe. Apparently he was going to do away with someone and it didn't matter who."

The 22-year-old pool maintenance man was charged with first-degree murder in the death of Eddie Bobbie, 47, who was killed in the spectacular crash at a busy Fort Lauderdale intersection. The suspect was being held without bail.

Grimes told cops Satan had ordered him to kill himself and to take someone with him, investigators said.

So he stepped on the gas and intentionally plowed into Beddie's auto, which was stopped at a red light, officers said.

The cars collided with such force that Beddie's Buick flew into the air and his body was thrown 30 feet into a vacant lot.

But incredibly, Grimes suffered only minor cuts.

He sat quietly in the twisted wreckage of his car until an ambulance arrived, witnesses said.

"He was just staring into space, like he was in shock," recalled Angelo Williams, 34, who was walking along a nearby sidewalk when the grinding collision occurred.

But Grimes' brother told bystanders the suspect had been upset over breaking up with his girlfriend.

"He was acting very strange," said traffic accident investigator Michele Chamberlain. "He was depressed."

Meet nerd-for-hire Clovis P. Cravens

Inside fitness counselor Don Hopkins is another personality struggling to get out and every once in a while that personality emerges — as Clovis P. Cravens, hopeless nerd.

Hopkins has a part-time job working for Rent-A-Nerd, Etc., in Tulsa, Okla., where he specializes in going where he's not welcome and making a nuisance of himself.

He has "performed" at birthday parties, office bashes and bachelorette get-togethers. He has embarrassed countless women by showing up as their blind dates. He has caused shock, horror and even fear by crashing elegant parties.

Dressed in impossibly mismatched plaids, taped together or horn-rimmed glasses and white plastic shoes, Cravens is so believable people are polite to him.

He sports slicked back hair with a comb or two, carries

DING-DONG, nerd calling. Don Hopkins, aka Clovis P. Cravens, rings doorbell of client's home.

Uc protector for his shirt pocket, studded with ballpoint pens and mechanical pencils.

"People don't know if I'm for real or not so they don't say anything," the 29-year-old bachelor, told The NEWS.

"I wear a T-shirt underneath my shirt with the tag hanging out to look. The hems of my slacks are uneven and well above the ankle. My socks don't match. I'm talking top of the line thrift shop stuff."

The professional nerd got his big start in business when he and friends Ron and Tami Jones came up with the wacko concept and decked Cravens out for a trial appearance. They took him to a public bus, and Selsfest loudly. Shortly after he was a star attraction and Rent-A-Nerd was a reality.

Now — for just $50 for a half hour or eighty dollars for an hour — Cravens can be hired by anybody who wants to torture a friend.

He will show up to his unwelcome performance dressed with his pockets packed with essentials like magic drops, mints, and dental floss and flashing a calculator watch with a light.

For a few extra dollars Cravens will put on a really special show and strip to his baggy boxer shorts. That, says Hopkins, is when the victims actually realize they've been tricked.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER SPEND 12 HOURS IN HELLISH . . .

Plastic bag suicide ordeal!

By DICK DONOVAN

An elderly arthritic cripple and her spinster daughter tried to kill themselves in a round-robin of self-inflicted torture that lasted for 12 horrifying hours!

The two desperate women — 75-year-old Norven Symons and her 53-year-old daughter Pat — slugged down bottles of booze, overdosed on drugs, stabbed their bodies with knives and then tried to smother themselves with plastic bags in ghastly bids to end their lives.

When found sprawled in her blood-soaked bed in her home in Whickham, England, the old woman was on the brink of death. She was rushed to a hospital and miraculously survived. But her daughter, a former world-class swimmer, was found dead, her rigid fingers still gripping the plastic bag over her head that had mercifully ended her suffering.

After her recovery, Mrs. Symons told police that she and her daughter had been plunged into despair at the thought of losing their dress shop customers to the smarter stores.

The two women connected what they believed was a painless suicide pact that began early one morning when both gulped down drugs rinsed with tall glasses of liquor. Then both went to their separate beds to await death. But the potentially deadly drug cocktail only made them ill.

A few hours later, the two desperate women each got a kitchen knife, went to their bedrooms and stabbed themselves repeatedly.

And when that didn't work, they each got plastic bags, went back to their blood-drenched beds and tried to suffocate themselves. The bag did the trick for Pat, but when police found her mother, she was still alive.

Today's kids are flabbier

Today's kids spend a lot of time sitting on their rumps watching TV instead of exercising — and are fatter than children of 20 years ago because of it.

That's the conclusion of the Public Health Service who surveyed 4,071 kids aged 5 to 11. They found the average kid prefers TV over physical activity.

Judge orders dirty-talking hubby's mouth washed out!

An angry judge ordered bailiffs to wash a man's mouth out with soap after he called his wife "a cow" and her mother "a pig" in court!

He went on to fine 46-year-old Enrico Messina $20 for contempt and threatened to throw him in jail if he calls either woman a bad name again.

By LEONARD SCHAEFER

"He's lucky I didn't throw the book at him right then and there," Judge Guido Barelli told reporters in Bolzano, Italy.

"How dare he call people names in my presence!

"If we had been in court I probably would have beaten him to a pulp."

Messina reacted to the name-calling while answering to charges that he assaulted wife Patrizia Messina, 43, and her 69-year-old mother during a confrontation at their home in December.

He denied the charges and literally pitched a fit when mother-in-law Diana Olivier called him a liar during her own tearful testimony in court. According to newspapers, Messina bolted from his chair and called Mrs. Olivier "a pig in parrot's clothing."

When Messina's outraged wife jumped to her feet in protest, he responded her "a fat ugly cow" and told her to keep her big mouth shut. "Nobody does that in my courtroom," said Judge Barelli.

"First I had my bailiffs restrain him.

"Then I had them wash his foul mouth with soap.

"I'd do it again," he added. "I can't make the man respect his own family but I can damn sure make him respect me."

Messina's trial was postponed after the bizarre incident and likely won't be rescheduled before summer, said newspapers. Meanwhile the man has lodged a complaint against the judge for having his mouth washed out with soap.

In the opinion of judicial ethics professor Fabio Dalmati, Judge Barelli did overstep his authority and probably faces the criticism and possible censure of his peers.

But Mrs. Messina called the judge a champion of justice, adding:

"Even if my mother and I lose the case we've gotten our revenge."

"I 'Retired Early'...

THEN MADE $27,000 PART-TIME IN A BUSINESS OF MY OWN"

"$27,000 Part-time isn't bad for a guy who quit his job. I 'retired early' from the insurance and securities business, now make good money part-time with Pace, and have as much work as I care to handle." A true story by a very happy Pace distributor.

"I'm still amazed how things have changed for me since I became a Pace distributor! Let me tell you how it all started...

"When the national economy wasn't going too well, I decided to get out of the business I was in. I had given some thought to retiring, but was really too young for that. Well, it so happened my own commercial building had a leaky roof. Roofing contractor prices were literally sky high! Then I remembered an article about Pace Products and how with their exclusive Seamless Spray process you could actually bypass high priced contractors. I sent for their literature, saw how easy it was to sell, and I wound up doing the roof myself using Pace products and know how.

"Well, word got around about how much money I had saved and that opened a whole new world of opportunity. Ever since then I've been like a cat on a hot tin roof! The first year I did 15 roof jobs. Almost double that the second year, and had a huge backlog. Most of these were big jobs like the county home, the Chevy-Buick garage, bank buildings, city hall. Big jobs mean big money!

"The business I used to be in had been pretty good to me, but I really had to work both nights and days. With Pace, business just seems to fall into your lap. I don't really do any promoting or 'selling' ... most of my sales come from referrals, and my phone's ringing all the time.

"What I like to tell people is that Pace offers a fine income opportunity. You can start working as little as two hours a week and then go full time when your income exceeds your regular job."

What our successful Pace distributor is too modest to say is that he actually did over $100,000 worth of roofing business last year, in spite of living in a depressed farming area! And that's working less than half of the year, leaving the rest of the time for his family and other interests.

What makes Pace such a good business is that it runs a fortune for schools, hospitals, plants and other commercial buildings to have roofing companies repair or re-do their roofs. Pace bypasses the roofer—lets the building owner apply Pace Seamless Spray right over the old roof — and the smallest Seamless Spray order earns you over $1,550 in commissions.

Pace ships the Seamless Spray equipment on Free Loan. Your customer pays only for the roofing products. His own men apply it (or if you want to make even more money, you can handle the application, too). It's as simple as that."

No Investment!

You, too, can enjoy the same success. Best of all, you don't have to invest a penny. You don't need any special background or experience. Of course, if you have selling, construction or application experience, you'll benefit even more so.

Pace is a proven winner. That's why it is used by such well-known firms as Ford Motors, American Airlines, Holiday Inns and thousands more.

Fear-stricken couple terrorized by adopted son

A living nightmare!

By PETE COOKE

After waiting more than four years Tom and Janice Colella adopted a beautiful, blue-eyed boy. Then their terror began.

"It was a living nightmare," said Colella, a 37-year-old electronics engineer from Santa Ana, Calif.

'Monster' child has set his home ablaze and vowed to kill his family

The Colellas were overjoyed when they got the word that they would be able to adopt 5-year-old Tommy.

"He looked wholesome, all American," Colella said. "And they led us to believe that we were really lucky to get him, that he was the very best."

But when they discovered the truth, the couple sued the county social services agency for not telling them that the little boy had a history of violence and was so mentally disturbed that animals instinctively feared him.

Even after Tommy was institutionalized, the Colellas fled their home in fear because of his constant death threats.

"We still have nightmares," said Mrs. Colella, a junior high school teacher. "And I still get anxiety attacks. But as awful as it was, we knew that Tommy suffered more than we did. He was denied the treatment he needed. The system failed him."

Childless after three years of marriage, the Colellas started looking into adoption in 1972.

In 1977 they were told they would be able to adopt Tommy, whom they said county case workers described as a "misunderstood child" who could quickly overcome his minor adjustment problems with love and support.

"It was an emotional game they played with us," said Mrs. Colella. "They knew we were desperate for a child."

What the Colellas didn't know was that Tommy's natural mother gave him up after he started a fire that destroyed their home. By that time he had a history of torturing animals and attacking fellow children.

Shortly after he moved in with the Colellas, Tommy killed his pet hamster and mutilated the family dog's ear.

During the four years he lived with the couple, Tommy repeatedly set fires, hallucinated and prayed to Satan.

But David Broberg, an attorney who represented the social services agency, said Tommy lived with the Colellas as a foster child for 18 months before they adopted him.

"Tommy was acting aggressive and attacking Mrs. Colella within two weeks, so they knew there was a problem from the start," Broberg said.

When they realized they weren't able to help Tommy, the Colellas voided the adoption and sued the county for failing to tell them the child was psychotic.

The county settled the suit for $70,000, but the couple, who now have a 5-year-old son of their own, still live in fear.

A counselor from a home where Tommy was confined said he intended to kill his adopted family. The Colellas have sold their home and moved.

IN HAPPIER TIMES: Tom and Janice Colella have since sold their home and moved away.

Japs have big yen for small island

By DICK DONOVAN

The Japanese government has launched a $240-million construction project to protect the island of Okinotorishima — twin two-foot rocks no bigger than king-size beds!

They're shelling out $240M to protect tiny specks of land

While that may sound like a frivolous waste of money, the Japanese know it's a good investment.

Besides, they have no other choice. If the two rocks that make up Okinotorishima continue to be eroded by the sea, they will soon vanish — and Japan will lose exclusive fishing and mineral rights to 182,000 square miles of ocean!

And that's an area bigger than Japan itself.

Those otherwise insignificant twin dots in the Pacific happen to form Japan's southernmost point. If they disappear, as they most certainly will unless protective measures are taken, the country's territorial waters will be pushed back 200 miles.

"Our mission is to conserve our territory," said Masashi Waki, the civil engineer who will supervise the island rescue project. What Waki and his colleagues plan to do is encase Okinotorishima's twin rocks in massive steel-and-concrete blocks that will act as a shield against the destructive force of the waves.

The process can be compared to a dentist putting a cap on a crumbling tooth. But it's a lot more expensive.

Okinotorishima's two rocks jut only two feet above the ocean's surface at high tide. They are little more than tops of coral reefs that have been battered by the sea for centuries.

1,300 miles southeast of Tokyo.

But if Japan's project fails, Okinotorishima will disappear forever.

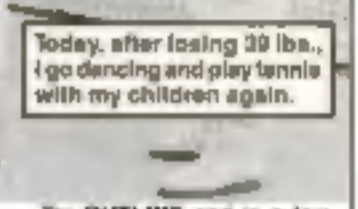
INTERVIEW WITH MARIE LEWIS

HOW I LOST 39 LBS. IN 29 DAYS

while I continued eating everything I like!



Marie's friends couldn't believe their eyes. People she hadn't seen for awhile almost went into shock and even those she met daily had a problem believing what they saw. Because losing 39 pounds in 29 days is no small deal and it doesn't go unnoticed when one loses an average of over 1¼ lbs. a day!

Q You weighed 176 lbs. and went down to 137 lbs. in less than a month. What happened?

First of all, don't think that I've waited until I weighed 176 lbs. to try to lose. I started to become overweight when I was in my late teens and I've been trying to lose weight for many, many years. I've been on all kinds of diets. I've seen doctors. I've been to spas and I spent a fortune on innovations and pills, but nothing helped. On the contrary, I kept gaining weight.

Anyhow, one day I learned about a new weight loss program, OUTLINE. I decided to try it and here I am. For the first time in my life, I was actually able to lose weight, a lot of weight, while I continued to eat all the foods I crave: pizzas, burgers, hot dogs, chocolate cake, ice cream . . . name it. I had my snacks as usual, I went to restaurants, I simply went on with my routine, but I lost weight.

Q You say that you lost about 1¼ lbs. a day while you continued eating as usual. How can that be?

I know that some of the people reading my story will find that hard to believe. The only thing I can say to those people is that I probably believed less in this than they do today when I decided to try OUTLINE. You see, when you weigh 176 lbs. and have had nothing but disappointments, you stop believing. At that point, either you give up or you keep trying. I'm lucky I tried OUTLINE. My problem has always been that I crave the wrong foods. But I never stopped eating and still lost 39 lbs. in only 29 days.

Q But hasn't it always been impossible to lose weight while eating fattening foods?

I know it may sound contradictory. But losing weight while eating fattening foods is no longer impossible if you let OUTLINE help you to flush out built-up excess fat while you eat everything you like. That's exactly what makes things so easy with OUTLINE. You don't have to change your routine. You may continue having your usual meals, keep going to your favorite fast food places and restaurants, and still lose weight.

Q How do you feel now that you've lost?

Absolutely great! My life has completely changed. I've bought a new wardrobe and now I'm getting admiring looks. No more "look at that fat lady" looks. And I feel much younger and healthier too.

Q Do you have a message for our readers who are still struggling with a difficult overweight problem? Any Advice?

What I'd like to say to this: If you're like I used to be, I know that by now you must have tried about everything and that you must be feeling pretty discouraged. Logically speaking, I don't see why the only thing that ever worked for me, a compulsive junk food addict, wouldn't work for you too. OUTLINE helped me to finally get thin and it was fast and easy. For my part, I thank God I decided to give it a try. That's all I can say. The rest is up to you.

Your FREE Gift! with 60-Day Order A $15.00 Value!

When the fatty bulges are the first to go you look much thinner almost instantly!

YOU PAY ONLY IF YOU LOSE!

Try OUTLINE and in a few weeks, the story you'll be able to tell your friends may sound pretty much like the story Marie told you today. Returning your NO-RISK TRIAL COUPON doesn't mean that you wish to order and keep OUTLINE. It means only what it says, THAT YOU ONLY WANT TO TRY. HOMESICK CHICK makes itself at new home.

Clever kitty-cat treks 300 miles back home!

A super smart cat found her way back home three months after she had been given to a New Orleans nursing home — 300 miles away.

"Her feet were muddy and the bottoms of her pets were worn, but she looks a lot better now," said the Rev. J.C. Cox of Makrhard, La.

Cox never thought he might see his 11-year-old pet, Chiki, again after dropping her off at the old folks home.

To reach the Cox home in northeastern Louisiana, the clever kitty-cat had to cross the Mississippi and the Red rivers.

"She acted a little strange at first, like she didn't know if she was going to stay," said Cox. "But the cat later calmed down.

"I guess she'll stay with us another 11 years," he said.

Bang on the noggin turns toddler into super genius

By FRED GEORGE

Alicia Pettersen was a normal 3-year-old cat until she fell, banged her head — and woke up as a super genius with a mind-boggling IQ of 197!

"This is an unbelievable leap of intelligence," said Dr. Hans Vetaas, who has been studying the girl from Bergen, Norway, since her accident last October.

"The child is only three years old but she solves complex mathematical problems with the speed of a computer. She plays Mozart and Beethoven on the piano from memory.

"And while her language skills used to be slightly below normal, she now speaks six languages with absolute fluency."

The little girl's astonishing transformation has not only shocked but delighted her parents. After falling off her bike she went into a coma. Doctors worried that she might never wake up and speculated that if she did, she would be retarded.

"We were terrified," said Sven Pettersen, Alicia's 27-year-old father. "There was our child motionless in bed and all we could think was the worst.

"You can imagine how surprised we were when she woke up within a week and spoke to us about her ambition like she was a doctor herself."

It quickly became evident that something had altered the child's brain. She taught herself to read while still in the hospital. Later her scores on a battery of IQ tests averaged out at 197.

Amazed docs say her brain works like a computer

Kid killed by Christmas gift gun

A teenage boy was accidentally killed on a trigger aftermath of Christmas — when he was shot in the chest with a BB from a gun he got as a gift.

Brian Grant, 14, died in a Tampa, Fla. hospital several hours after being shot with a BB fired from a pellet rifle by a teenage friend. Pellet rifles and pistols are powered by compressed air, and the velocity of the projectile depends upon the amount of air pumped into the rifle chamber.

The shooting was ruled accidental and no charges are expected, police said.

As she battles to save her sinking show . . .

DOLLY BLASTS TV PHONIES

Country sweetheart Dolly Parton has lashed out at the so-called showbiz "experts" who collected big bucks to give her lousy advice that wrecked her show.

"You hire people because they're supposed to know," said the miffed miss of melody. "You assume the money you pay them, and the reputation they have, they know something.

"You'd be amazed at how little they know.

"I'm not kidding! I don't know how some people get where they are."

Now battling to salvage her battered variety show, Dolly's taken complete control, changed the format and hopes that her new Saturday night time slot will be lucky for her.

Dolly said she knew the advice she was getting from experts who tried to change her from a country girl into a Tinseltown player was bad, real bad. But she figured they knew what they were doing because of their reputations and the high salaries they commanded.

"What I've learned is I have to be more on the job. It's constant work. I'm working on the show 9 to 9." — New York Daily News

Tinseltown's number one spender is reportedly pretty Candy Spelling, wife of fat cat producer Aaron, the daddy of dazzling Dynasty.

Famed for showing up for lunch dripping with jewels, creature Candy found a new way to spend the dollars and oodles of bucks Aaron pulls in for hosting $5,000 no-rations Christmas cards for her pet poodles to send to their pooch pals. — New York Post.

It's judgment day for gruff superstar George C. Scott and his actress-wife Trish Van Devere. The pair just got slugged by the IRS with a $413,000 bill for back taxes and penalties.

The feds say George and Trish shouldn't have claimed some losses on their 1978 and 1979 tax returns from a movie he produced. Better luck next time, George. — Chicago Sun-Times.

Dolph Lundgren

Swedish hunk Dolph Lundgren says bigscreen musclemen Schwarzenegger and Stallone are too old to be playing superheroes.

"I think every dog has its day and they've had theirs," boasts the blond giant who starred in the mighty He-Man in Masters of the Universe.

"Old guys can't play superheroes.

"They are only both ridiculous but kids would find them ridiculous."

Strutting Dolph, who packs 244 pounds of super-charged muscle on his 6-foot-4 frame is a mere 27 and in his prime. Meanwhile, the aging Italian Stallion is 41 and Austria's most muscled 6-foot-2 action star Schwarzenegger is 40. Dolph says the hugely-overdeveloped pair are starting to get mad as their muscles.

"There is an age limit on looking good and nobody can stop that," said Dolph.

"So guys can carry on buying a fast chatty body for the rest of his life.

"Both Sly and Arnie look as though they're beginning to sag, but I'm not at least 10 years before I get to that point."

Ironically, Sly gave Dolph his major break making the gigantic swede as the Russian robot boxer Drago in Rocky IV.

Fame aren't the only ones who resent feisty Valerie Harper since she was booted out of her TV sitcom Valerie's Family. Teen heartthrob Shane Sutherman, who played Valerie's son, is still broken up.

"I love Valerie," said the lad. "I miss her.

"She's like my real mum."

Meanwhile, Valerie insists that the ditch for bigger bucks weren't the reason for her getting axed from her own show and replaced by perky Sandy Duncan. "My salary was never a primary issue," she says. "I wanted creative input and I wanted Lorimar (the producers) and the network to live up to some of the elements of the original contract." — New York Post and Miami Herald than I used to make in a week!

I Earn More Per Day Now...

I started my own business part-time as a Von Schrader Associate... got step-by-step help and success beyond my dreams.

This is how it really happened.
A true story by William Turnbow

"I got tired of punching a time clock, having somebody always telling me to do this and do that. I wanted to be my own boss. So I took the plunge." That's how William Turnbow describes a decision that changed his life.

"Let me back track a bit. I was always a farm boy ... born and raised on a farm. Even had my own farm after doing a hitch in the Marine Corps. But it got harder and harder to make enough to support a wife and three growing boys, and I had to get out.

"Then I got into managing a food store. One day while reading a magazine, I saw a message like this one, that opened a new door of opportunity for me ... a message about becoming a Von Schrader Associate. Frankly I was kind of skeptical but sent for the information. When it came it sounded good just what I was looking for. No big investment. No licensing or franchise fee. No training needed. The only requirement was a real desire to get ahead and devote the necessary effort. What really appealed to me is that you pay no dues, fees or royalties—every single penny you earn is yours to keep!

WORK PART-TIME/MAKE FULL TIME

"I started out part-time, kept working for the food store. In a couple of years my business had grown so much that I went full time. As I said, being my own boss is something I had always wanted. But another big payoff is that I enjoy a sense of accomplishment doing a job, getting compliments. I always like that pat on the back.

"My first job was for a neighbor. Then jobs for friends, neighbors and relatives — and they started telling other people. It started to snowball and pretty soon I had as much business as I could handle. Our best advertising came from satisfied customers— and it's still that way today.

"NOW I MAKE MORE IN ONE DAY THAN I USED TO MAKE IN A WEEK."

Believe it or not, I made $43 per hour on one job recently — and have made as much as $1,600 in a week. And I've got four men working for me.

"Another thing, I like is being able to go hunting and fishing all I want. I've got the time and the money for camping a lot. We recently moved to a new larger house, too.

"To say that Von Schrader really helped make all this possible would be an understatement. From Mr. Von Schrader on down, I have been treated as good or better than any company could treat anyone. I've never called about any problem without getting number one service.

THREE MONEY MAKING BUSINESSES

"As a Von Schrader Associate you can really have three money-making businesses in one if you want. Carpet cleaning, with the only truly machine that cleans and vacuums carpets in one pass. Upholstery cleaning, that quickly returns in bright, sparkling clean upholstery without harmful overwetting. And wall cleaning, almost 5 times faster than bucket-and-sponge, with little effort, no streaking.

"It's no wonder leading home furnishing companies in every state endorse the Von Schrader method.

"And believe me, I wouldn't trade being a Von Schrader Associate for anything! This is the only thing I've ever done I've been completely satisfied with—only thing I've never had second thoughts about."

That's William Turnbow's story in his own words. Now how would you like to earn big money, starting out in your spare time, just like him? Wouldn't you like to be your own boss? Become financially independent? We'll be happy to mail you all the facts. Just send in the coupon. That's how William got started. You'll get our FREE booklet and see how we guide you completely every step of the way. How to line up customers. How to estimate jobs. How to make big money.

Glamor girls booting older secretaries out of jobs, says report

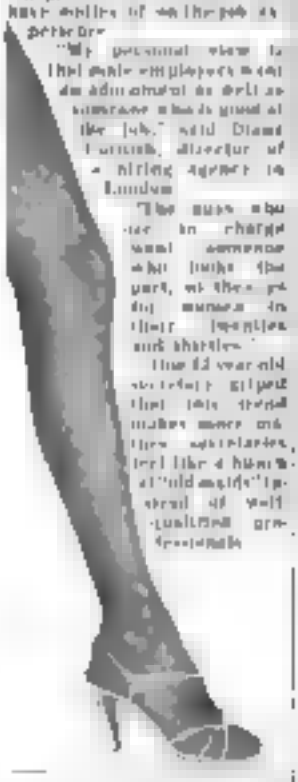
Older, highly skilled secretaries are in a slump because bosses prefer to hire cheaper, sexier, young beauties for office help, says a shocking new report.

According to job recruitment agencies in Europe bosses want to hire secretaries aged between 25 and 30 years but they avoid those like 40-year-old gals who are skilled and have oodles of on-the-job experience.

"My personal view is that male employers want an administrator as well as someone who is good at the job," said Diana Farrish, director of a hiring agency in London.

"The guys who are in charge want someone who looks the part, so they go for women in their twenties and thirties."

The 41-year-old secretary argued that this trend makes more mature secretaries feel like a hunk of "old aside" instead of well-qualified professionals.



How to tell your dog's real age

Dogs do not age an equivalent of seven human years each year of their life.

A year-old dog is physiologically equal to a 15-year-old child, and a 2-year-old dog is like a 25-year-old adult.

From age 3 on each additional year a dog lives is equivalent to about five of our years, according to a booklet entitled Caring for the Older Dog.

The booklet, prepared by Quaker Pet Foods Corp., provides important tips on exercise, grooming and health

PLEASANT SUBURBAN HOME where police say Thomas Sullivan stabbed his mother to death

Did Satan possess all-American boy?

An all-American teen stabbed his mother to death with a Boy Scout knife and then killed himself after a school project on satanism lured him into the occult.

"It was hell of a thing to find," said police Capt. Kenneth Wilkinson after the grisly murder-suicide shook quiet Jefferson Township, north of Mount Arlington, N.J.

Until recently those who knew 16-year-old Thomas Sullivan Jr. described him as an all-American youngster. He made straight A's, was popular with schoolmates, was a good athlete, a Boy Scout and a paperboy.

But after Tom stabbed his 37-year-old mother Betty Ann to death, tried to burn down the house of his father and brother slept, then stabbed his own throat with a knife, a picture of the troubled teen emerged.

Capt. Wilkinson said that just one month before the tragedy students in Tom's eighth grade class were assigned to do a research paper on different religions.

A friend of Tom's said a paper on satanism and that got him interested in it, Capt. Wilkinson said.

The teenager's sudden interest in occult worship and the occult grew rapidly, according to investigators. Tom checked out a number of books on satanism from the library, tried to conjure up the devil with a Ouija board and spent $1,000 on a stereo system so he could listen to heavy metal music.

A few days before killing his mom, Tom told friends that he'd been having a recurring dream in which Satan appeared to him and urged him to murder his family.

Just hours after attending a morning church service Tom argued with his mother and stabbed her repeatedly in the chest with his Boy Scout knife, police said. Then the teen laid out satanic books in a circle on the living room floor and set fire to them, according to investigators.

After Tom fled a smoke alarm woke his father and 20-year-old brother Thomas Sullivan Sr. got out the blaze in the dining room and found his wife's body.

Tom was found dead the following morning in a neighbor's backyard. He had slashed his wrists and throat with his Boy Scout knife, officials said.

Cops say he studied occult — then killed mother and committed suicide with his Scout knife

BLIND SON RECEIVES LEGACY OF LOVE

A MIRACLE OPERATION gave grateful Seamus Moggan his father's cornea. Now, the 32-year-old man's vision is completely restored.

Man sees with his dead father's eyes

Seamus Moggan sees the world through his father's eyes — because surgeons gave him the gift of sight with his dad's donated corneas.

Moggan, a 32-year-old father of three, was blind and helpless before a miracle operation restored his vision. Now every day he thanks his dead father for the generosity that changed his life.

"I feel my father's gift will be with me forever," said Moggan who lives in Galway, Ireland. "They tell me that when I was coming around after the operation, I kept saying, 'Thanks, Dad. Thanks, Dad.' over and over."

By SUSAN JAMISON

her dead husband. Moggan says he always can make her smile.

"I put up for and look at her and say, 'Watch it, Mom, Daddy's looking at you,'" Moggan said.

"She can't help smiling at that."

"It's just like he's happened to a miracle. And I keep wanting to say 'Thanks, Dad' all over again."

Moggan's father, Patrick, died of cancer several months ago. At the age of 57 he had no idea he would be the means of bringing his son a legacy of love that would change his life.

He knew that Seamus was going blind because of an inherited degenerative disease of his corneas.

His own eyes were fine — and he decided to will them to his son.

Not long before he went, he told his uncle: "I have something special to do for Seamus," recalled Patrick's wife, Selena.

"I know it was what he wanted and I feel part of him will live."

Young Moggan underwent the surgery two days before his father's funeral. It took fully seven-and-a-half hours for the corneas to be transplanted. He can see clearly now for the first time in a long, long time.

And when his mother puts on her make-up and combs her hair, Moggan says he always can make her smile.

"I put up for and look at her and say, 'Watch it, Mom, Daddy's looking at you,'" Moggan said.

"She can't help smiling at that."

Mother beats son to death — for fibbing

A mother was so miffed when she learned that her 9-year-old son had lied about getting top grades that she beat the dickens out of him for four hours — killing him.

Authorities in Qinghai Province, China, said the mother was furious when she found out that her son had failed to score 90 percent in his school subjects.

The boy had been lying to her about his grades.

The injuries the boy suffered from the four-hour beating were so severe, he died of them later in a local hospital.

Cops say hubby led them on wild goose chase — then confessed!

HUSBAND Matthew Solomon stands beside his wife's casket at the funeral in a Westchester graveyard. The victim's body was found dumped in a field near their home. Two weeks later, Solomon was arrested and charged with killing his bride of two months when cops said he strangled her during a fight

I STRANGLED MY BRIDE

By PATT COONS

Just two months after tying the knot, the honeymoon ended for a couple of newlyweds when they had their first fight — and the groom strangled his bride!

Cops say Matthew Solomon reported his 22-year-old wife, Lisa, missing six days before her nude body was discovered in a field near the couple's home in Huntington Station, N.Y.

But shortly after his arrest two weeks later Solomon, 23, confessed to strangling his wife during an argument over whether they should go out or spend the evening at home.

Cops said the battle erupted as Lisa stepped out of the shower and Solomon got an armhold around her neck.

"She said she hated me," Solomon said in a video-taped confession. "I asked her to calm down as I squeezed her.

"After a few minutes she was quiet and I realized that Lisa was dead," he admitted.

Authorities said Solomon, a sheet-metal worker, lifted his wife's body into the bathtub, then drove to a convenience store to buy plastic garbage bags.

When he returned, Solomon stuffed his wife's corpse into a garbage bag and placed it in the trunk of his Buick. Then he drove to a field two miles from the couple's apartment and dumped Lisa's body, investigators said.

Lisa Solomon

Hours later, Solomon called police and told them that his wife, a bank teller, had never returned from a walk at about 10:30 p.m. while he went to bed. He said he woke up around 3 AM to find that she hadn't returned.

But family members said they suspected that Solomon had killed his wife.

"We had our suspicions all along because of his attitude, the inconsistencies with his story, his nervousness and lack of concern," said Howard Klein, Lisa's uncle.

"He wasn't grieving like normal people would grieve," Klein said. "Nobody deserves to be thrown away like a sack of garbage. I don't believe he had any remorse."

Shortly after he confessed to the crime Solomon phoned his father and said, "I strangled Lisa. I'm sorry."

Solomon was charged with murder and held without bond.

Home buyer's guide to real estate double-talk

In the market for a house? Before you look in all the wrong places check out Boston Magazine editor Ken Cooley's guide to the true meaning of real estate jargon, below:

● Cozy: Stand up in this house and you'll have to fit the ceiling as well as your head. Don't stretch your arms or you'll bust a window.

● Investor's dream: You'd have to be crazy to live here yourself.

● Great location: Nice for cruising, but you could argue with them without opening a window.

● Dressed up: The rough-hewn beams shine.

● Needs fair amount of work: Utterly cut the back out.

● Charming: Nice when built 200 years ago.

● Convenient to highway: House was built on a median strip.

I'm madly in love with my baby's pediatrician

Dear Dotti: I am 25 years old and have been married for five years. We may be 3 years old, but I'm very attracted to the pediatrician who is in his late 60s, but he doesn't look that old. He is married, too, and has two sons.

All I think about is this doctor. I really want him. But if my husband finds out how I feel, he will probably divorce me.

What do I do? — Doris Geraghty, Indiana

Dear Doris: Forget that dating she doesn't need a lawyer making gun-gun eyes at him. Put them out your little family a favor — take yours to a medical office instead.

Guys ought to dress just like gals

Dear Dotti: I am now a male and I am now a 26-year old pilot. However, it is my preference to live, as much as much as I can, in the total opposite gender role — as a woman.

If I could find the right doctors to help me with it, I would be on female hormone therapy and other permissible thing. I would go through with having sex change surgery so that after that I could at least legally be a woman.

I am trying to find a lawyer who will help me with getting my name changed from my man's name to a woman's name.

I would give anything that I have to give in order to be able to start and all to give up my man's clothes and dress and live WOMEN'S clothes and things.

I have been through a psychiatric treatment, wherein the doctor certified me as a candidate for transsexual surgery. And then two college level psychiatrist found absolutely no evidence of a mental disorder or disturbances in me.

What I'm asking is that you tell girls to put their "female genitals" under at least guise they've tried something like shaving all of the excessive hair off their bodies and then changing to a lady's middle garb.

What shoes, then might make to like it, and then they wouldn't be so critical of men. Do you think willingly play a traditionally feminine role in life and like to help out with household chores. — Name Withheld, Chester, New Hampshire

Dear Mind: Chester. Are you really and truly happy, and that you've got yourself in the position of having both real women and real men here you down for a date?

Boozing boyfriend runs hot and cold

Dear Dotti: I'm deeply in love with my girlfriend. We've been seeing each other on and off for two years. We have six happy years together, but unfortunately there were times we've been separated.

The problem is that he's an alcoholic. He always changing his mind about us being together.

He says he loves me and cares about me but he always drinks before he comes over. I hate to love him. Hate the I love him! — Young and Broken Hearted, Virginia

Dear Young: This boozer hound should be dog-dumped so you could find a man with a little class.

How can I keep-tie Mr. Wonderful?

Dear Dotti: I've gotten up with the guy I love time we are around each other we laugh, have fun each other's eyes, feel safe when I'm giving him a long embrace and feel so warm. I can't express in plain how much we are in love.

Our sexual affair started five years ago when I was married to someone else. I became pregnant with my friend's child, but didn't tell him then. Now he is married and has a son, but he doesn't love his wife.

I've got a lot of male friends, but I don't seem to get out with them anymore. I'm here with memories of my friend and girl together.

Please give me some advice on how to get the nerve back to ask him for a date. — Keeping Him Waiting

Dear Keeping: Hide. Just because you've got a bad case of the blues and happens to be pressed to show up real friendly doesn't mean you're going to be a wallflower.

Confidential

Dear Mangle: Wrong! Cancer is cancer. Some cancers are real bad and some are benign. Who but will there is a cure.

Dear Deported to Extradite: Well, you'll certainly meet more people that way, but it doesn't look nice.

Dear Airsick Sweet: What can I tell you but that you're 700 pounds over the limit.

Dear Local Male in Anchorage: Hey, come on! Who says so? Some hunting buddies?

World's meanest man is my hero

Address your letters to Editors, Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, FL 33462. We reserve the right to edit your letters.

Editors: In your February 3 Weekly World News, you had a story about a man I consider a true hero — and yet you, in your yellow journalism style, had the nerve to call him the world's meanest man.

I'm talking about the Rev. John Campbell, the preacher who lives on a Scottish island with his wife and 10 children.

I'm only 18 years old and just starting college, but I hope when I become a father I have the courage to raise my family with the same firm hand this man does.

Mr. Campbell keeps his children indoors around the clock and forbids them to read newspapers or magazines or to watch television because he wants to protect them from an immoral world where Satan lurks around every corner.

This man lives by the word of the Bible.

While you and the rest of the sinners out there are burning in hell, Mr. Campbell and his family will be reading in the Kingdom of God.

If there were enough fathers like him, our churches would be full and our prisons would be empty. So keep your pagan opinions to yourself. — P.C., Miami, Fla.

If your Bible says a man should keep his terrified wife pregnant for 10 straight years, lock his kids up in a lonely farmhouse like reformed criminals and ban the little ones even for whistling you're reading a different Bible than we are, buster.

Fathers like John Campbell don't fill our churches, but the keep our mental hospitals hopping.

If you're serious about treating your family the way this madman treats his, we hope you'll take steps now to prevent that you never become a father. Your future kids will thank you for it. — Editors

Sword-in-head pic makes me sick

Editors: I can't believe it! You've gone and done it again!

Mostly I love your paper, but it seems like every edition has at least one picture that just about makes me lose my lunch. That picture in the January 13 paper of the guy with the sword through his head and the blood dripping down his chest was the worst. Why do you do it? — J.O., Boise, Idaho.

Because we know our readers like you want to see pictures like that. Besides, we're not the only ones who print them. Check out the tabloids at the supermarket checkout counter.

What do you call a pacifier thief?

Editors: I'm upset over the story in your paper about the crank who stole 737 pacifiers and nothing else out of babies' mouths. I figure there must be a word to describe this kind of fetish. Can you help? — P.L., Oklahoma City, Okla.

The word is weird — real weird. — Editors

Give us the word on Nicholson's shades

Editors: Okay, what gives? A few weeks back you had something in your Sound Off saying you knew how many pairs of sunglasses Jack Nicholson has.

I've been reading the paper ever since and I still just can't keep the answer straight. Is it 19 pairs or 20 pairs? Please help me out. — T.D., Wenatchee, Wash.

All right, already. We never knew so many folks had such a fighting interest in Jack's shades. For the record, he has 19 pairs — but of course, that was yesterday. We can't say whether he's been shades shopping

What is this remarkable product? It is a miraculous formula that Tova Borgnine discovered while on location with her husband, Ernest Borgnine, in a very remote section of Mexico. It comes from the moisture-rich roots of a exotic plant and was first used by the Aztec Indians hundreds of years ago.

Tova's product contains this exclusive formula. And amazingly enough, the entire process for younger looking skin takes only half an hour. It's easy to use, and it works like magic.

All you do is apply the formula to your face and wait. "The cream is pink when you apply it, and gradually turns white," says Tova. "There's no guesswork. It 'knows' what to do by itself."

"The best thing of all," says Tova, "is the way it makes you look years and years younger with the very first application."

"Would you like to try this amazing formula? Hollywood's top stars when one is never by it. You've read what others from all over the country are saying about it. Now you too can look as young as you feel.

Drug lord wins freedom — but he loses million$

By ALEX SCOTT

A wealthy drug lord who was doomed to die for his crimes gave away his entire $4.8 million fortune — and then, to his amazement he was set free.

"I'm flat broke without a dime to my name," said Chua Teng. "My mansion, my villa and my fancy cars are all gone. And my old friends turned their backs on me."

Chua, 38, languished on death row in a Singapore prison for six months after being convicted of trafficking in cocaine — a fatal mistake in Singapore.

Testimony at his highly-publicized trial revealed Chua headed a giant drug cartel that shipped billions of dollars worth of cocaine secretly around Asia.

While Chua waited to be executed, he was replaced as czar of the vast drug empire. "I told them to go ahead because I was a dead man anyway," Chua told a reporter for the Hot Pot Daily.

Chua was so afraid the government would confiscate his fortune after his death that he gave it all away.

His longtime girlfriend got his Rolls-Royce, two sports cars and his $1 million villa near Katong. His bodyguard got his Mercedes, and $1 million in cash was divided among his most loyal henchmen.

The entire country was shocked two months later when the government dropped all charges against Chua and released him from prison. There were rumors of payoffs.

"Actually, losing stripped of his wealth was a fate worse than death to a powerful man like Chua," said prosecutor Seah Chiang Ramasut.

"He has lived a stylish life for 30 years, buying anything he wanted. Now he has nothing," he said. "He is a celebrity in the dark. They want nothing to do with him."

Chua's bankrupt young girlfriend sparked her phone calls and ordered Chua's former bodyguard to shoot him on sight in an effort to bribe her.

The social circle quickly spread the word that Chua was an outcast and anyone befriending him would be digging their own graves.

"I built an empire that made all my friends rich and now they don't know I exist," said Chua. "I should be better off dead."

Guys forget pill

A birth control pill for men is right around the corner, but most wives say they wouldn't trust their husbands to remember to take it, a new survey found.

An overwhelming 70 percent of the women taking part in the poll said husbands who can't remember an anniversary once a year could not be trusted to take a pill every day, said the British survey.

Laser beam zaps suspect in kid's [illegible]

By PETE GOOSE

Space-age detective!

Police said a combination of space-age technology and old-fashioned legwork led to the arrest of a suspect in the sniper slaying of a little boy who was killed as he played at home.

OFFICER Alexander Varelli holds laser rifle used to track a sniper's bullet.

New York City cops said 5-year-old Jose Diaz Jr. was playing on the floor of his parents' apartment when a rifle shot ripped through the window frame and a metal fragment hit him in the head.

Police armed with a laser device mounted on a rifle fired a laser beam through the bullet hole in an attempt to find out where the fatal shot came from.

The laser beam eliminated three buildings in the Bronx housing project and focused the attention of detectives on the other two apartment buildings. After interviewing 500 people, police arrested 37-year-old Ruben Encarnacion, whose apartment window is about 100 feet from the Diaz apartment's window.

Encarnacion was charged with second-degree murder, criminal possession of a weapon, reckless endangerment and second-degree assault.

He told detectives that he had just bought the rifle from someone on the street and said it went off accidentally when he brought it home.

But Jose Diaz, the dead boy's father, said he didn't buy Encarnacion's story.

"He should not have used my window for target practice," Diaz said.

EXPECTANT moms Louise Medus and her hubby John are looking forward to the birth of their baby

Thalidomide mom's gutsy gift of love

Marriage brought happiness to courageous cripple Louise Medus and now it's bringing her something more — a precious baby to embody the love she shares with her husband John.

The 25-year-old thalidomide victim, who was born without arms and legs, was featured in a NEWS article last July when she walked down the aisle on artificial legs.

Now she's making headlines again with the news that she's going to be a mom.

"We wanted children while we were young so we could keep up with them," said delighted Louise, who will give birth in May. "I am a bit of a pessimist, but my philosophy is that it's no good sitting there feeling sorry for yourself. Louise, who lives with her husband in Totteridge, England, has been in touch with another thalidomide mom — Jeanette Cooke the first victim of the birth defect drug to give birth. She's getting advice from Jeanette on how to overcome her handicaps to care for her baby.

"I won't be able to bathe the baby," Louise said. "And the bottoms will be too small for me to do up with my teeth."

"But I will be able to hold him in a baby carrier. I'll have a live-in nanny to help but I'm determined to do as much as I can."

In spite of the difficulties Louise and her partially blind husband will have raising children, so having a family of their own. Doctors say there's no doubt their baby will be healthy, so they know he'll keep them busy.

But they say with careful planning, there's no reason why they can't be perfectly normal parents.

"We have to be practical," Louise pointed out. "The second one can only come along after five years once the first has gone to school."

Guy buys $106 paperweight for $4

Charles Goldstein bought a chunk of glass at a Shelby, N.C., flea market for $4 — and may soon sell the trinket for a whopping $10,000.

A New York auction house said the glass is a paperweight made in New England more than 100 years ago. Experts appraised its value at $6,000 to $10,000.

My magic wand can cure AIDS, doc says

Professor Abe Abrahami says he has discovered a way to cure AIDS, cancer and infertility — by using a "magic wand" made from a battery and a tube of salt water!

The 56-year-old practitioner from London's famous Harley Street says that by laying the tube against the affected area of a patient's body, he can use energy from a simple battery to successfully treat a wide variety of disorders. And although his claims have been rejected by many experts, Dr Abrahams insists his invention is an important breakthrough.

"I'm not saying it cures on every case, but it certainly can help," the mild-mannered said in a recent interview. "I am not a quack. I am a scientist."

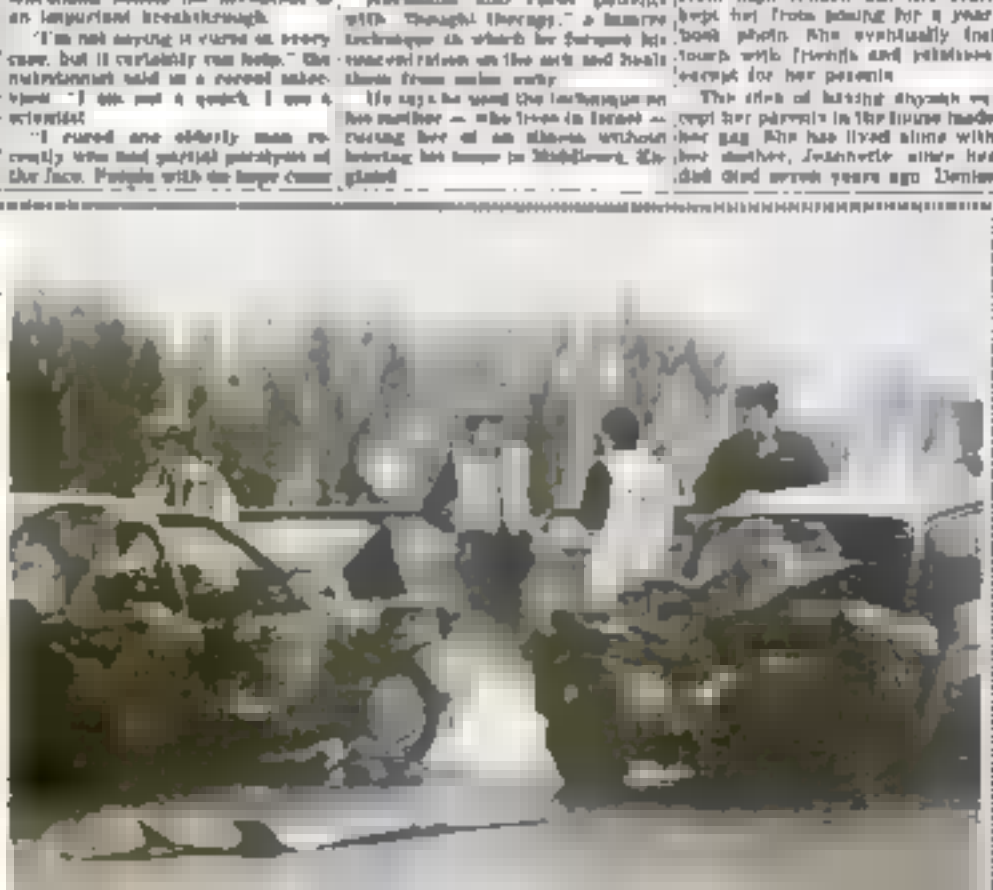
"I cured one elderly man recently who had painful paralysis of the face. People with the longer cases to me as a last resort and I believe I can help them."

Abrahams also cures patients with "thought therapy," a bizarre technique in which he "programs his unconscious mind with the sick and feeds them from outer space."

He says he used the technique on his mother — who lives in Israel — curing her of an illness without leaving his home in Middlesex. He died seven years ago. Denise

Heartbreak highway

Mistress Sylvia Hewett thought she'd had enough tragedy when her son died of a sudden brain hemorrhage a few weeks ago — but fate had more heartbreak in store for her. Shortly after her boy's death, the 33-year-old Egham, England, woman was injured in this car wreck and watched in horror as her husband and parents died before her eyes in a fireball of white-hot flames. The frantic woman — her hair on fire and her charred hands covered with blazing plastic — desperately tried to save her family, but couldn't free them from the wreckage. A passerby had to drag her from the flaming wreckage just seconds before it exploded. Mrs. Hewett's parents were found in the backseat, fused in a fiery embrace. Her dad turned 70 on the day of the accident.



CALL for Little Smiles. Surprised mom Barbara Lines cuts her baby daughter Victoria.

AAA-CHOO! Surprise!

Mom catches a cold — and has a baby!

By Susan Hanson

Barbara Lines came down with a cold one day — and came up with a baby!

She took some antibiotics prescribed by her doctor for a sore throat and the medication made her birth control pills less effective. The next thing she knew she was expecting.

A few months later, the 27-year-old Manchester, England, mother gave birth to her eight-pound baby — little Victoria — three months prematurely. Now at last she's taking her baby home with her after the baby had to be fed a special liquid diet through tubes leading to her tiny stomach and she required round-the-clock care.

Although doctors expect Victoria to survive the battling baby faces an uphill fight in life. Now she's a healthy 7 pounds and growing.

Barbara is an absolute miracle, said the happy proud mother Peter Lines.

And a delighted medical staff seems happy with her progress. Barbara had a premature baby and Saltford's Hope Hospital, where the little girl was tenderly cared for. "At first the odds were against her, but now she's in good shape.

The spokesman urged women to heed the small print on packages of birth control pills to determine which medications reduce their effectiveness. That way women can avoid catching down with a cold – and then ending up with a baby, like Barbara did.

'I had no idea I could get pregnant from a sore throat!'

How to Live in Mexico [redacted] $300 a [redacted]

(Special) Live in one of North America's best climates on a beautiful 60-mile long lake nestled in the mountains. Over 85,000 Americans live here comfortably, many on social security or small pensions. For about $10 a day each, two people can live in a spacious home, eat good food, have a cook, housekeeper and gardener, and have money left over for entertainment or savings.

The new book Paradise Found: How To Live In North America's Best Climate For Under $300 A Month tells you all about this retirement haven--how to get there, where to stay, where to eat, what to do, how to earn extra money, how to buy a home at reduced prices.

Why do so many Americans live in this retirement community? Here's why:

• Living costs. They are ridiculously low. Recent Peso devaluations make the part of Mexico one of the cheapest places to live in the entire world. You can get a nice hotel room for $12 a night. Full course meals for $2. You can have a maid, gardener or cook for under $30 an hour. Many Americans live comfortably on social security in small pensions.

• The climate. It's near perfect year 'round. You're almost never too hot or too cold. It enhanced the world's best climate.

• Beautiful Surroundings. You'll live in a magnificent lake, 60 miles long nestled in the mountains. You'll breathe fresh, clean, unpolluted air. You'll see stunning colors. Blue water, green mountains, red and yellow flowers. You can have the entire world and never see such an enchanting place. The book has plenty of photographs so you can judge for yourself the beauty of the haven.

• Live in a community of other Americans. The colony hasn't been hit by American misery, medical care, American style shopping facilities, clubs and many social activities. What's more, the local people treat you with warmth and kindness. They love Americans. And you're never too far away from home. You can drive here a few days from anywhere in the U.S. By air, you're just a few hours away.

The book also gives you practical advice on living in Mexico--health care, laws, travel, customs, food and water, selecting a home, making extra money. Whether you're looking for a place to retire, a low cost vacation spot or some place to get away from it all, this place has something for you.

If you are fed up with high living costs, bad weather, congestion, pollution, crime, too much stress and pressure, consider this retirement haven of thousands of other Americans are already doing.

After she mysteriously loses her own baby . . .

ELEPHANT ADOPTS CIRCUS DWARF!

By MYRON KAPEK

A mama elephant adopted a circus dwarf when her own baby died — and the little guy couldn't be happier about it!

"This is the life," Claude Martin, who stands only 3 feet, 5 inches tall, told reporters in Limoges, France. "I get all the food and wine I want.

"And the elephant makes quite nobody bothers me."

Newspapers said the bizarre union began when Patti the elephant's baby mysteriously lost strength and died in late December.

The shell-shocked mother mourned for days, they said, until Martin's employers at the Nikkel Superb Circus assigned him to cheer her up.

"Her spirits picked up from the moment she laid eyes on him," said trainer Alain Mevaid. "She cradled him with her trunk and then cuddled it against the side of her enormous body.

He was scared stiff at first. But I told him to play along and he eventually got used to it.

"It really doesn't matter if he likes it or not," added Mevaid. "Patti gets mad if she so much as touches him the wrong way."

Mevaid said the circus could get rid of the big elephant but would prefer to keep it as long as Martin is happy in his new position.

"Now they must hide to keep from losing their lives."

"If this type of violent action had been taken against some other group, there would have been a huge public outcry and an army of police involved in the case right away," said da Silva.

AIDS-fearing vigilantes kill 300 gays!

By PETE COOKE

Concerned Brazilian officials say that vigilantes who are terrified of AIDS have launched a campaign to wipe it out — by murdering every gay in the nation!

Authorities said at least 300 gays have been slain so far and every member of the country's gay population is considered a target of the rampaging mobs.

Paulo Cesar Benitez, a member of an AIDS patient support group in the city of Sao Paulo, said he expects the death toll will keep climbing.

"People are beginning to think, 'Let's kill them because they transmit AIDS,'" he said.

Roberto da Silva, spokesman for the Brazilian Gay Rights League, said some of the country's homosexuals have armed themselves, but others have gone into hiding.

50-YEAR-OLD MYSTERY SOLVED!

Son reveals: My father was murdered by my mother

Fifty years after his father was poisoned, still-grieving Len Sandford put this shocking note on the old man's grave: "Here lies my beloved father — murdered by my mother!"

The 58-year-old bus driver's message ended a 50-year mystery that no less a police agency than Scotland Yard tried and failed to solve.

There was never any doubt that dead 30-year-old Lewis Sandford, of Downham Market, England, was killed by a powerful dose of strychnine. But nobody was convicted of the crime, even though his wife, Rose Sandford, was a prime suspect.

Even then, young Sandford knew in his heart that his mom was guilty. But he held until her recent death to tell the world the truth.

"I know my mother did it," said Sandford. "We did fight after seeing her tried on this with a neighbor the night before he died.

"He took Epsom salts in his tea and it was then she added the rest of the strychnine she dipped into it."

A spokesman for Scotland Yard said the agency wouldn't have been able to prosecute the woman even if Sandford had spoken up while she was still alive.

A result originally ruled that there wasn't enough hard evidence to convict her of murder in spite of the fact that she was a suspected adulteress.

And the spokesman said that under British law she couldn't have been charged a second time with the same crime.

Sandford said: "I often thought about coming forward when Mother was alive but I just couldn't bring myself to do it.

"She knew she was guilty. And even before her, she knew that I knew she was guilty.

"We never discussed Father's death. But all she had to do was look into my eyes to see the hatred and disgust I felt for her."

Will toy tanks trick Russkies?

Military bigwigs have a great new idea for fooling our enemies — they're going to use fake tanks and soldiers to make our army look bigger and meaner.

Incredibly, fold-away tanks that fit into duffel bags can be used to make a force seem three times bigger than it is to enemy spotters.

Already, a 50-worker plant near Washington, D.C., is hard at work turning out thousand three-dimensional tank decoys made not of canvas. The phonies look real to the naked eye and can even fool heat-seeking targeting systems.

A make-believe M-1 tank costs $4,500 compared to $3 million for a real M-1.

He lifts it with his eyelid alone. "It doesn't hurt when you get used to it," he said. "With practice it's no harder than opening your eye

A new study shows that up to 20 percent of people with slightly elevated blood pressure may merely be victims of "white-coat hypertension" — a condition, researchers say, that arises only when a patient visits his or her doctor.

The study was led by Dr. Thomas G. Pickering of the New York Hospital-Cornell University Medical Center and was reported in the American Medical Association journal.

White coat hypertension apparently is brought on by a patient's anxiety when visiting the doctor's office and vanishes soon after the visit.

Killer squirrel attack

Squirrels are cute little critters who climb trees and forage for food, but once in awhile they go berserk — and you have to beat them to death with a broom.

That's what happened to Jeremy Williams whose stepmother was hanging clothes out to dry in Mount Dora, Fla., when a savage squirrel leaped down a tree and attacked her.

Williams, 33, rushed to her aid and found the furry little monsters locking on the bottom rack of the bedroom quilt.

"She just gave out a shriek," said Williams. "I made sure stop from and knew must be pregnant and." She was bitten on the leg and clawed on the back and arms.

"I finally got ahold of a broom and just kept hitting him until he couldn't move anymore," said Williams. "I used him like a baseball. It took six or seven hits to get him."

Tightwad's maid costs him $16Gs

An angry judge slapped a $16,000 judgment on tightwad Gorbind Parwani after the shopkeeper was convicted of hiring a maid — and treating her like a slave for a year!

The Hong Kong electrical shop owner went to India to recruit Anina Fernandes and promised her $500 a month in salary. But when she went to his home he confiscated her passport and her contract and told her she would never get a day off.

For the next year, Mrs. Fernandes slaved seven days a week for a total salary of only $1,000.

She finally slipped a policeman in the street he glared with him for help and Parwani was slapped with a summons.

Mrs. Fernandes testified that in India she signed a piney contract which was blank when she put her name to it. Then, when she arrived in Hong Kong, Parwani took back the contract and restricted his new maid to the house.

The woman, who had wanted to send money back to support her struggling family in India, borrowed heavily to travel to Hong Kong. When she found out about the conditions she would work under she could not afford to quit and go home.

She worked every day for months before Parwani's wife intervened and begged Parwani to give the maid three hours off on Sunday for church.

Parwani denied the charges, but the angry judge did not believe him. She ordered him to pay an additional $5,000 in compensation to his maid "because of the lies he told to the court."

Nationally Advertised Ambervision™ Super Glasses For Only...

$10?

(Not $69.95)

AMBERVISION™ REVOLUTIONIZES EYEWEAR

As part of an enormous publicity campaign to prove that we have the absolute lowest prices available in the nation, the giant new home shopping club "USA Buyers Network" will give away one million pair of its most expensive vision enhancement glasses — the nationally advertised Ambervision™ Super Glasses, for the unbelievable "competition-busting" price of just $10 only to those who write to the company address (below) before Midnight, Mar. 31, 1996.

Not $100, Not $69.95 — Incredible Give Away For Only $10!

Vision enhancement eyeglasses have been nationally advertised by others in leading media in many times this price. In fact, you would think that high-tech vision enhancement Super-Glasses like these would sell for well over $100.00! But during this nationwide publicity campaign, you don't pay $100.00 — or even half that much. You pay an incredible give away price of just $10! But this offer is for a limited time and only available through this nationwide publicity campaign if you respond before the deadline above.

High Technology Disguised As High Fashion

Don't be fooled by the appearance of these glasses! These are not ordinary sunglasses. They may look like high fashion sunglasses (in fact, they are designed after some of the most expensive brand names on the market today — e.g. Porsche™, Carrera™, etc.) — but are actually the latest breakthrough in eyeglass technology. Ambervision's scientific design filters out blue and ultraviolet portions of the light spectrum that have been proven to be harmful to your eyes. By filtering out these dangerous rays, not only are your eyes protected from damage, but your vision

A New [illegible] Through New Eyes

Just imagine what it would be like to look through glasses that make the world seem sharper, more vibrant, more alive and more cheerful. Slip on a pair of these sleek designer sunglass "tear glass" and you'll notice a marked improvement in your vision. The world will seem so crisp so clear, that you'll feel as if someone took just great pile a new pair of eyes. This vision enhancement experience is so incredibly phenomenal that you literally "won't believe your eyes!" Thousands of professional golfers, hunters and sailors have already discovered and reaped the benefits of these indispensable Super Glasses — now you too can experience the excitement of ENHANCED EYESIGHT!

What About Sunglasses

The unfortunate truth is that OR DINARY sunglasses may be dangerous to your eyes. Everybody knows that your eyes automatically adjust to light. When you wear your darkened lenses, your pupils open wider to adjust for darkness — but this becomes harmful because your eyes are now letting MORE dangerous UV rays in.

Ambervision® lenses are graduated to help shield against overhead light. [illegible]

MARCH BIRD COMPANY

Honeymooners get a not very pheasant surprise

By JOE SINGER

Hapless hunter David Rice stomped through the brush for hours without bagging a bird.

Then, when deadeye Dave finally did blast a pheasant from the sky, the dying fowl beaned his new bride — and nearly killed her!

Groom shoots high-flying bird and it clobbers brand-new bride

Bashful Carolin Rice suffered a ruptured spleen when the defiant pheasant plummeted toward the ground and bonked her over like a rock.

"I didn't really want to be out there in the first place," the battered bride groaned after surgery at a Winchester, England, hospital. "I despise seeing things killed.

"I only went because David loves lugging around his stuff — and I love David just as much.

"But if I'd known it was this dangerous I'd have stayed home."

The gung-ho hunter and his gun-shy lady had been married less than a week when Dave, ill-prepared Carolin to accompany him into the great outdoors.

"It was a downstream day from the start," the hapless hubby recalled. "It was cold and rainy and I could see Carolin was having no fun at all cringing around out there.

"To make matters worse, I'd only had two shots — and I'd missed them both."

That just as the wirehaired quadrupeds were about to head for home, Dave perked up at a four-pound pheasant and blew it to kingdom come — then watched in horror as the big bird bombed his bride.

"She was off to my right and she turned her head when I tagged the pheasant so she wouldn't have to watch," said the shook up sharpshooter. "I didn't realize the bird was going to hit her until I heard the crash and saw Carolin crumpling to the ground.

"I rushed over and found her flat on her back with the bird lying on top of her. All she could say was, 'Dave, get this bloody thing off of me!' She was a sorry sight."

Distraught Dave rushed his dazed mate to a doctor, who checked her over and sent her home.

But the next day 48-year-old Carolin fell so ill her hubby took her to a hospital, where X-rays revealed she had a ruptured spleen.

"The doctors told me she could have died, and I feel terrible," Dave told reporters. "It was my fault she was out there and I should have taken better care of her.

"I've promised her if she ever wants to go hunting again, I'll buy her a suit of armor."

10 people drink themselves to death at party

By HENRY WEBB

Ten people ate and drank themselves to death at one of the wildest parties ever staged, say cops.

The four-day bash in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, moved from apartment to apartment in a government complex and was attended by as many as 240 people before tear-gas throwing cops finally brought it to a halt.

Authorities estimate party-goers drank more than 10,000 beers and 1,000 bottles of hard-boiled whiskey.

Cops said the tank also ate hundreds of pounds of meats, cheeses and caviar that were stolen from a government warehouse.

Sgt Emile Pirol told reporters in Belgrade.

"And these people weren't kids. The youngest person there was in his 30s. The average age of guests was about 50."

Police were alerted to the shindig after neighbors complained about the noise and fighting. Seventy people were arrested on charges of disturbing the peace, public intoxication, loitering and resisting arrest.

While rounding up the revelers police found six men and four women dead.

"We first thought we were dealing with a mass murder," said Sgt. Pirol. "But autopsies revealed that they had suffered heart attacks or strokes from overeating or drinking too much."

One of the survivors, 46-year-old Edo Mirosiki, told reporters: "You might not believe it but I'm not a big party guy.

"It's just that this was New Year's and I got swept along with it. If you ask me how I behaved, I simply couldn't tell you.

"All I know is that it's been a long time since I've had so much fun."

Grumpy horse bites off kid's finger

A grouchy police horse chomped off the finger of a 13-year-old girl who tried to pet him.

Pauline Ferguson of Northwood, England, was hospitalized when the horse suddenly reared his head and bit down on the kid's hand.

Pig fights banned

Government officials in Thailand are cracking down on pig fighting — the latest fad in Southeast Asia.

The fights that pit specially bred hunting porkers in combat to the death have become the most popular Saturday night entertainment in Bangkok's suburbs, say cops.

Caddy's trunk held a horror!

A mechanic at a car dealership opened the trunk of a new Cadillac and found a spare tire, jack — and the corpse of a 37-year-old man.

Cops in Los Angeles said the body of Howard Goldman had been in the trunk for at least 10 days. He was the son of a sex video company owner.

Waitresses have killer jobs

Waitresses put up with a lot of guff from wise guys and sleazeballs, but that is not the worst part of their job — the job itself is downright dangerous.

A new health study reveals waitresses, health aides, nursing home nurses, phone operators and laundry workers have the highest incidence of death among women.

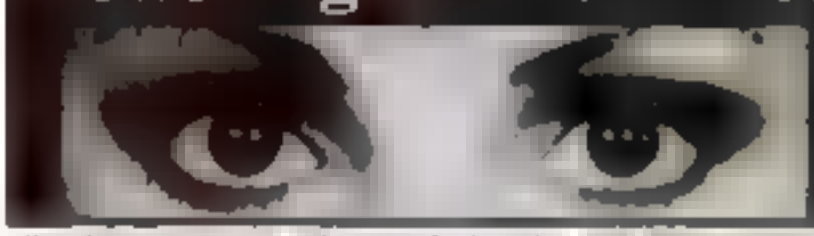
The men who are at greatest risk are gas engineers and dockhands, loggers, roofers and other physical laborers.

Waitresses die at three times the rate of female sales clerks. Comparisons with the [illegible] female deaths are teaching, nursing, sales and clerical work.

"The study cannot directly show a cause-and-effect relationship," said Gretchen Dobbins of the California Department of Health Services.

Death rates of saleswomen may be related to factors other than the job, such as smoking and drinking. Waitresses suffer four times the rate of lung cancer.

Power Against Wrinkles



[illegible] was a beautiful young [illegible] slowly turning into ugly wrinkles? I tried. I did. Just like you, I tried every wrinkle cream on the market with no results. I was ready to give up when, while on a trip to a famous European health spa, I discovered an amazing anti-aging formula that has changed my life forever.

While there, one of the doctors explained how for years they have been blending special herbal extracts unique to certain regions of the Swiss Alps into a youth cream for their patients. A cream so pure and natural even those with sensitive skin can use it. His further explained how, as we grow older our skin loses its natural ability to retain moisture and how it's this lack of moisture that causes wrinkles to first appear in the early twenties and grow progressively worse over time. He then went on to say, the secret of this cream lies in its ability to naturally increase the skin's elasticity in [illegible] with vital nutrients. He showed me how the special herbal extracts penetrate deep into the skin where wrinkles begin and immediately start working with the body's own chemistry to speed the skin's natural rate of cell renewal while replacing, correcting,

Drill-happy dentists say [redacted] to painless treatment

A new process that dissolves cavities may be ignored by dentists, who say they still like drilling teeth, according to researchers.

Carisolv, the chemical cavity-dissolver, was introduced last year after receiving Food and Drug Administration approval.

A recent poll showed that most dental patients prefer the chemical solution to drilling, but dentists aren't so enthusiastic.

Robert Marotti, a psychologist who heads the Northeastern University dental school's behavioral sciences division, said "very few dentists are using it on their patients."

According to Marotti, "Dentists are generally a conservative lot.

"I think because drilling has been part of dentistry since the very beginning and because many identify with that procedure, giving it up would require a difference in the way they see themselves."

Marotti said he doubts Carisolv will be widely used by dentists until patients demand it.

Mystery of the lost lady

Amnesia victim learns her name but little else!

By PETE COOKE

A woman with amnesia has traveled the country searching for her identity, but said she had more questions than answers after discovering who she really is.

The woman, who called herself Sarah Gray when she drifted to Columbia, Missouri, last October, finally learned that her real name is Marylouise Mosbel.

Her identity was traced after a University of Missouri linguist listened to her speech pattern and thought she might be from Pennsylvania. He made a tape recording of her voice and sent it to a Pennsylvania colleague who narrowed the search down to the Pittsburgh area.

Pictures of her were circulated in Pittsburgh where relatives recognized her.

But now all Marylouise knows about herself is what relatives have told, that she is 38 years old and has been on her own since she was a teenager.

"Evidently I had not lived with my family since the age of 16 so evidently we were not very close," Marylouise explained.

Columbia police Detective Susan Brady said Marylouise intends to stay there for the time being.

"She is working and living with a family here and receiving counseling," the detective said. "The chances are good that she will regain her memory but no one knows whether it will be gradually or all at once."

PAST is still a blank for amnesia victim Marylouise Mosbel.

Man carries his severed arm to hospital

Mark Nicholson cut off his arm with an electric saw and still had sense enough to flag down a passing motorist — and take the severed limb with him in a nearby hospital!

Thanks to his courage, surgeons were able to reattach the arm in a dramatic operation. And it now appears that Nicholson, of Whitney, Scotland, will regain full use of it in time.

"We're trying to keep his mind off the accident," said the 28-year-old man's mother. "We want him to put the memory of his ordeal behind him and concentrate on getting well."

Cops catch suspect in a doghouse

A burglary suspect wound up in the doghouse — for real — when he took off with police hot on his heels and dove into the four-foot-square pooch pad for cover.

The Hartford, Vt., man had to admit a misdemeanor to clean the doghouse, but his clever ruse failed anyway because his footprints in the snow led cops directly to him.

According to police, the suspect was spotted after a patrolman saw a broken window at a car dealership and saw a man fleeing.

Cops followed the man's footprints, chasing him into a backyard which contained a doghouse. They saw the dog shivering outside in the cold.

Family's secret shame

Incredible ordeal of a handicapped boy

By PETE COOKE

Cops say a handicapped boy became a family's darkest secret as they kept him hidden away for 18 years until he died weighing just 35 pounds!

New York City Police said that Paul Johnson's body was found wrapped in a blanket and lying in the living room of his family's apartment in Queens.

Shocked police investigators said neighbors and long-time residents of the apartment building claimed they'd never seen the retarded teen and didn't even know he lived with the family.

"He was definitely the family secret," said one officer.

"It was like he never existed. He was a nonentity," the policeman said.

Police went to the third floor apartment after a caller called authorities to report a "possible dead body."

Officials said the boy's mom, Patricia Johnson, died last year.

While cops say he had been cared for by his 19-year-old sister, Edna, who lives in the apartment with her boyfriend and their 3-year-old daughter, authorities said:

"The sister told the cops that he'd been the mother died," a police spokesman said. "She said her brother was sneezing and coughing and moaning on Sunday, but that it was not unusual for him."

Medical officials said an autopsy would be performed in order to determine the handicapped teenager's cause of death.

No charges were filed.

Quick justice

In an example of how swift Chinese justice can be, officials recently tried and convicted 17 criminals at a state rally, then executed them on the spot!

According to Shenyang provincial radio reports, the defendants were cited for crimes that included murder, rape and robbery.

Five other defendants in the quickie court of Shenyang were convicted of robbery and given life prison terms.

According to Chinese law, convicted criminals have 10 days to appeal death sentences. Reports failed to say whether these convicts were given this opportunity.

Gals say they're fed up with hubbies who eat high on the hog behind bars

Wives protest prison food

By JOE BERGER

Wives of cops locked away in Taiwan's Hualien Prison are fighting mad about the food their menfolk are being fed in the pokey. The infuriated ladies say the boosegow chow is just too doggone delicious!

"Our husbands are eating gourmet meals in prison, and then they get out and expect us to feed them the same way when they get home," said fuming Soul Li, leader of the hubby-wifey tattling.

"But some of us just don't have the time or the training to cook like that, and the men feel cheated. They say they'd rather be back in prison than eat the garbage we give them."

The Reds in Hualien have been mulling over their mouth-watering meals at the slammer since chief Pibil Chiang was sent to the clammer for bungling off his brother-in-law. Chiang took over the kitchen after the former cook was caught selling the prisoners' food on the black market.

Chiang's culinary creations have been a big hit with the inmates, who have been showering him with fan mail and gifts.

"Pibil is a genius. We've got him in charge of the kitchen.

"He's performed magic," cooshed chief guard Chin Wan-yang.

"He does the purchasing, the menu planning, the preparation, everything. And his meals are masterpieces. The commies couldn't be happier."

But the inmates' wives are determined to wipe the smirk off that.

The female gals are writing letters and staging demonstrations demanding that the chefs' hard-time masters be served less scrumptious grub.

"When I visit my husband in Hualien, he tells me everything has been wonderful but the food is," gripped Wei-ling Ho, wife of Pibil-busted Chen Ho.

"He wants me to take cooking lessons before he is released this summer so I can make him meals just like the ones murderer makes.

"I know some wives whose husbands have been cooking dishes comparable to what the men get in their prison. To us, that's unfortunate.

"If we're going to have children in prison, you just don't have things to be a gourmet chef."

So the district and jail that sent husbands to Hualien like prisoners — but not like prisoners.

Three hundred dozens of irate ladies paraded outside the pokey carrying placards that read "Don't ruin our marriages" and "Dailies are a prison — not a country club."

But prison bigwigs say they're not about to do away with the finger-lickin' cuisine to please a bunch of hollering ladies who don't want to appreciate their kitchen skills.

"The inmates have any beef — feed and happy," a spokeswoman said.

"We have had absolutely no disruptions among the prisoners since Pibil began cooking for us.

"No one wants to put them on a diet of delicious food."

Banker divorces his love machine

By STELLA DAVIS

Exhausted Egbert Mannvogel got a divorce from his wife Frieda — because he couldn't keep up with the love-hungry lady in bed!

The Gera, East Germany, couple convinced a civil court judge that they were unable to continue their marriage because Frieda needed to make love at least three times a day and Egbert, a 31-year-old bank vice president, wasn't up to it.

"I need sex three times a day every day, or I'm going to survive," Frieda, 28, testified before Judge Heinrich Schulze. "The urge is so strong that when Egbert can't satisfy me I have to take lovers.

"I love my husband, but he's just not enough for me. I want to be free to find someone more like me."

The Mannvogels were married in 1978 and lived happily together the first three years after their wedding, they testified. But as time passed Frieda wanted more and more passion and Egbert began to feel like a prisoner of love. The differences between their sexual desires drove Frieda to consult several psychiatrists for fear that she might be a nymphomaniac. But doctors said her sex drive was normal — even if it was very, very strong.

"I just couldn't keep up with it," Egbert testified. "Morning, noon and night Frieda wanted me in bed. I have got a day of rest! Even when she was sick with the flu, Frieda wanted sex.

"I got so I was physically exhausted. It's over for them. I love my wife and I'm even attracted to her, but I just can't take it any more."

The couple who have no children, tried family therapy, hypnotism and even adultery to solve their problems, but nothing worked, they said.

They finally decided on a friendly divorce in the hope that Frieda could find someone with whom she would be more compatible.

"I feel terribly guilty, but that is beyond my control," Frieda, a sales clerk, said. "This is a strong physical need. That is something I can't ignore — even for the sake of preserving my marriage."

Judge Schulze gave the couple a divorce, but told them he did so reluctantly.

"This is an extremely sad case," he said. "Obviously these young people love each other. It wasn't lack of affection — or even lack of the will to make

Short and sweet

It only seems right that the World's Smallest Candy Co. be run by the world's smallest boss. Arthur Gil, one of the three owners of the Los Angeles-area based operation, is a three-and-a-half foot bundle of energy whose idea for mini jawbreakers, tiny gummi treats and licorice bits has grown into a successful business. By the end of its first year, the company sold $500,000 worth of the pipsqueak sweet treats and the coming year looks like a boom. Gil's partners are giant-sized Dan Wanna, a 400-pound six-footer and regular-sized Wendy Wagner. Wanna had run a candy store for 11 years when the pint-sized Gil said how the idea of making midget candy. "I was tired of big things," he explained. According to Jones, the tiny spacecraft, traveling at six miles per second, could reach Saturn in two years, half the time it took Voyager 2.

Rancher survives 30-hour ordeal pinned under tractor

GRATEFUL Art Stinson is comforted by his wife Donna during his recovery

'I licked water off my dog's fur to stay alive!'

Rancher Art Stinson was crushed under his overturned tractor in freezing weather for 30 hours. But he was able to keep up his strength — by licking water from the fur of his dog Rusty!

The 55-year-old retired aircraft mechanic was trapped when his tractor flipped on top of him as he hauled a load of rock on his ranch Sunstrock, Ariz.

"I yelled until I was hoarse, but no one heard me," Stinson told from his bed in the Tucson Medical Center.

The harrowing ordeal began on a Sunday afternoon when a wheel of the tractor buried itself in the rain-softened ground. The machine, with its command leader tilted over on top of him.

"One fender was pressing on my right arm and a steel section was on top of my head," he said. The NEWS

"For the first 24 hours, the tractor kept settling in the mud and I was afraid it was going to crush my head.

He said it [illegible] the night that water on a nearby pond from

"It was danged cold at night, but during the day when the sun was on me, it was pretty warm and I got very thirsty.

"My dog Rusty had jumped like a shark watching look and he came over to me to where I could lick the water from his coat. That helped ease my thirst. He's a real hero."

For 30 agonizing hours, Stinson lay pinned under the tractor, barely able to wiggle his fingers and unable to raise his head more than ½ of an inch.

Man jailed for selling mummy

An amateur archaeologist got in over his head when he tried to sell an ancient Indian mummy to a buyer who turned out to be an undercover federal agent.

Phoenix, Ariz., authorities said 56-year-old Ralph Cortiana offered to sell the mummy he found in a cave in Tonto National Forest for $35,000.

Cortiana was convicted on charges of trafficking in archaeological resources and possession of property stolen from federal land.

Cortiana, who discovered the 1,350-year-old Indian infant mummy in 1977, explained that he thought he could keep the mummy because he found it.

Gutsy couple get along with gang of ghastly ghosts

SPOOKED! Gerald and Camilla Harford stand in the attic of their manor. The couple says evil forces make their home hot but they're sticking it out.

By COLIN McMAHON

Courageous Gerald and Camilla Harford live in a world of eerie sights and sounds in an ancient home called Little Sodbury Manor — known as the most haunted house in Europe!

We live in the world's most haunted house

Their magnificent English manor was once the home of 16th-century martyr William Tyndale, who locked himself away in an attic room and spent long hours translating the New Testament into English.

"Tyndale was later strangled and burned at the stake by an angry mob for heresy," Camilla said.

"And since then, anyone who's tried to spend the night in this ghastly room has run out screaming in terror — believing he's being strangled [illegible], fraidy-cat. Parson wound up dashing downstairs ghosts! But the Harfords said Parson recently rowed to defy the evil that lurks in the room. But he'll never enter that room again — too many, with a mouth full of blood. The writer says: don't mind the ghostly goings-on.

"Sodbury is our home. Despite the spirits — we love it," said Camilla.

Honeymooning fire-eater burns down love nest

Fire-eater Ian Ravel's wedding night got hotter than he expected when a flaming wand slipped from his hand and burned his honeymoon love nest to the ground!

"Our honeymoon was a nightmare," Marida Ravel, the circus performer's 20-year-old bride, told reporters in Bucharest, Rumania. "I told Ian to leave his fire-eating kit at home. But he's so thorough and professional he brought it along to be ready to practise."

Ravel, 28, and his new wife were married in Bucharest on January 14, and were looking forward to a romantic week in Brasov, on the edge of the Transylvanian Alps.

Everything went fine until they arrived at their rented honeymoon chalet. Once there, Mrs. Ravel jumped in the shower to freshen up while her husband began practising his act.

"Ian is very thorough, and he's been practising for years," said Ravel. "I lit my lamped wand and pushed it down my throat several times without incident.

"Then I accidentally scorched my tongue and unthinkingly flung the wand across the living room."

The burning stick landed on the floor under some curtains and set them afire, said Ravel. The young man tried to smother the flames with a blanket but couldn't. Within minutes the entire wall of the chalet was on fire.

"It was a beautiful honeymoon house," said Ravel. "We managed to get one suitcase out before the fire got too hot. By the time fire fighters arrived the chalet had burned to the ground. We lost everything."

TRIVIA

facts about beards, [illegible]'s, Barbie and other . . .

By RAFE KLINGER

Astound your friends, astonish your neighbors and wow your family with your amazing grasp of trivial facts.

Here's a plentiful package of little known information ranging from the effect of beards on the guys who wear them to what happened when the lid of a coffin was shut in old China.

ARE YOU intimidated by beards — like the one Abe Lincoln sported?

● Most people feel that a beard makes a man more manly and it does. Guys who wear beards think the fact makes them more macho and that confidence makes them act that way. Also, shrinks say people have a basic fear of beards called "pogonophobia," and this makes them feel a bit intimidated by a beard-wearing man.

● Within the guano-ape subplanet current that name for a creature "Jumbo" means "big chief" in Swahili.

● Humans have 22 teeth, but only mammal in the United States has 50 chompers in its mouth. It's the hockey puppet.

● If you think the famed Barbie doll has a skinny figure, you're right. If little Barbie were blown to full human size, she'd be 38-21-33. That's one skinny doll.

● Does the time of conception have an effect on a kid's brain power? Experts say it does, but don't know why. Studies show that children conceived during winter months have slightly higher IQs.

● Americans are law-suit-crazy compared to the Japanese. Some 13 million suits are filed yearly here compared to just 385,000 in Japan. That explains why there are only 11 lawyers per 100,000 folks in the land of Toyota compared to 279 attorneys per 100,000 population in the U.S.

● Mourners at funerals in old China nervously stepped back before the coffin lid was slammed shut. They feared that their shadows might get trapped inside.

● Polar bears are more than just big — they're clever, too. The members of the Arctic race gleefully hunker down in their furry carcasses.

● A shortsighted bridegroom believes that both birds can help to watch a marriage. "Both birds you're more likely to stay mad all night at some body who didn't even touch you," he said.

● Folks in Tibet used to stick their tongues out when greeting strangers. They believed that evil people had black tongues while good folk were in the pink.

● Scientists say that if the amount of oxygen in the atmosphere reached 24 percent, the earth would explode in a huge ball of flames. But don't worry, the amount has been a steady 21 percent for ages.

● Some 97 percent of uneducated Americans in their lives are living [illegible] on other planets while only 44 percent of those who didn't believe in [illegible] men.

HAPPILY married for 62 years, Angelo and Pattie Sabbatis

Lovebirds tied knot in 1925

Hand-holding sidesitz Angelo and Pattie Sabbatis are as much in love today as they were the day they married — 62 years ago.

The silver-haired sweeties came from the same little village in Greece but never met until they bumped into each other at a soda fountain in Lancaster, Pa., in 1923. They tied the knot two years later.

Their formula for 62 years of wedded bliss is a simple one — love and forgiveness.

Cops arrest man who asked for their help

By AMY KLINGER

Police didn't think it strange when James Alan [redacted] them to help him move out of his home after his family kicked him out — but things got a bit weird when he started digging up coffee cans crammed with cash in the backyard.

They got suspicious after watching him dig up $206

"It's not unusual to ask for help when moving — especially when there's been a disagreement — but it was pretty weird when he started digging up that money," said Artesia, Calif., Police Sgt. Bob Garcia.

The buried cash totaled $30,000 in $20 and $100 bills, said Garcia. And while officers brought in a drug-sniffing police dog, they found the money had nothing to do with drugs, Garcia said.

[redacted] man was ordered to search Howe's truck.

The search revealed marijuana oil packaged up and ready for sale, said Garcia.

Also found was a paper with the address of a storage compartment in a warehouse.

Howe and his companion Leslie E. Barton, 39, of La Crescenta were arrested.

But investigators really hit the jackpot when they got a warrant and searched the warehouse Friday, according to the sergeant.

Inside they found five ounces of cocaine valued at $10,000, 10 pounds of marijuana valued at $30,000 and a small amount of LSD, packaged for sale.

What a way to make a living!

By DICK DONOVAN

Few men would dare do what fearless hunter Tahawar Ali Khan is doing at this very moment — trying to kill a man-eating tiger before it kills him!

But then, the debonair, 62-year-old Pakistani is anything but your average, run-of-the-mill hunter. He's been stalking and shooting man-eating tigers, rogue elephants and other kill-crazed beasts of the jungle for more than 40 years.

"But I am not a professional hunter," he said during a recent visit with his daughter in Cheshire, Conn. "I don't shoot ordinary tigers. Only man-eaters.

"People like to see me make a shot. They want me to shoot a deer. But I don't shoot deer. When you shoot the man-eating tiger, there is a different thrill. I know that if I miss the shot I will be killed."

Ali Khan isn't called in to hunt down a killer cat until after it's eaten several people.

And that's when the beast is most dangerous because it not only has lost all natural fear of men, but it associates humans with food.

His first trip after visiting with his daughter was to the Sundarbans region of Bangladesh where a rampaging Bengal tiger had killed and eaten several people and thrown entire villages into a frenzied state of panic.

And that's where he is today, tracking that savage beast to its next possible human kill somewhere along the banks of the Hanskhali marshy canals, knowing full well that the killer cat could be stalking him at the same time.

"When you disturb a tigress with her cubs she'll attack from the front," he explained.

"When you disturb a tiger while it's dining on a human kill, it will also attack from the front. But at any other time, it will launch its deadly attack from the rear."

Ali Khan, who killed his first tiger — your last

Hunter stalks man-eating tigers!

TRAILED Hunter Tahawar Ali Khan killed his last man-eating tiger when he was badly hurt in his tracks. Now he's stalking a big cat that has terrorized a village in Bangladesh

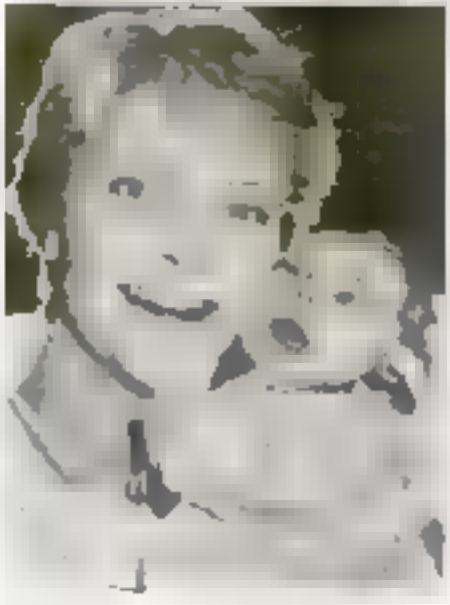
For 40 years he's tracked and bagged the dangerous cats

when he was barely out of his teens, has bagged nine man-eaters over his long career.

Three of those kills were made as the crazed beasts were hurtling at him like runaway freight trains.

"When you meet man-eating tigers, you can't wait the shot," he said.

"If you do, it will very probably be



HAPPY Tracey Hawksworth holds baby Paul.

Doctors said she'd never have kids but . . .

Miracle mom beats million-to-one odds

Nine years ago doctors told Tracey Hawksworth that she would never have children, but new medical experts are trying to figure out how she became a miracle mom.

Tracey, 31, and her 36-year-old husband, David, had given up hope of ever having children until a routine physical showed she was pregnant.

"When I went for a hospital scan I was told I was either pregnant or suffering from a cyst," said Tracey, who lives in Sheffield, England.

"Waiting for the results were the worst moments of my life," she said. "You can't imagine the joy and relief when I learned I was carrying a baby."

Tracey, who works as a clerk in a police station, later gave birth to a seven-pound son named Paul.

When Tracey was 14 she underwent surgery for spinal cancer and doctors told her she would not be able to have her baby and whether she can have more children.

"Either way, it's a chance in a million and there's now hope that one day I might have more children," she said.

Cops sent to driving class

A growing number of patrol car crashes has prompted the police chief in Little Rock, Ark., to issue a firm ultimatum — pass a defensive driving course or walk!

Capt. Randy Reed said many of drivers have been involved in accidents. Because of that they all must pass the 32-hour course.

Those who fail, Reed said, will have to pound their beat on foot or ride as a passenger in a patrol

Undertakers put infected blood in co-worker's shoes, say cops

Two [redacted] were indicted for taking blood from a corpse they thought had AIDS and smearing it in the shoes of a fellow worker who had sores on his feet, police said.

Authorities in Louisville, Ky., say Michael Poole and Daniel Metcalf had a grudge against apprentice embalmer Jose Marti.

Police reports on the [illegible] case said Poole, 31, and Metcalf, 33, showed "extreme indifference to Marti's life" when they "wantonly took the blood (on Marti's shoes)."

Marti told investigators that he had blistering sores on his feet because someone had put embalming powder, which is used to preserve bodies, in his shoes.

Detective Dennis Hardy said Poole put Metcalf with blood from the body of Thomas Dalker, a 38-year-old intravenous drug user.

Medical tests showed that Dalker had hepatitis, but was [illegible] AIDS.

Police Detective Hardy said Poole and Metcalf were working in the embalming room of Bonar Funeral Home when they took blood from the corpse and put it in a pair of work shoes Marti kept in an adjacent supply room.

The two embalmers were indicted for wanton endangerment, which carries a minimum sentence of five years in prison. Poole and Metcalf were also fired from their mortuary jobs. [illegible] DOPE

GIANT HOROSCOPE

By Countess Sophia Saleh

ARIES

Mar. 21-Apr. 19

Your outgoing Aries personality is an prominent display this week and should make a good impression on strangers.

Future financial and personal opportunities could arise from friendships made at this time.

If you feel in the mood for a big night out, go for it. Take that special someone to dinner. You've both earned it.

Don't let a back-stepping acquaintance talk you out of something you've worked extra hard for.

TAURUS

Apr. 20-May 20

Your Taurus tendency toward perfection could find you criticizing with friends or co-workers this week. Lay off. Good relationships are more important than correcting minor errors in others.

News from a loved one could touch your night off kilter in the week. The surprise — and it could be a welcome one — should have a major impact on your future.

This is no time to be extravagant. You may need every cent you have in the weeks ahead.

GEMINI

May 21-June 20

This week should be one of peaks and valleys. Try to iron out your life a little by keeping to your routine and avoiding impulses that could lead to trouble.

Someone is thinking you and trying to follow in your footsteps. Take a little time out with this person to the next few days to share your thoughts and feelings.

Don't commit yourself to anything in writing this week. On the other hand, do explore any possibilities for financial investments.

CANCER

June 21-July 22

Your tendency to be enthusiastic could bring you into contact with another person this week and lead to great rewards later on. Be careful not to let yourself be taken advantage of, however.

A last-minute change of plans could save you from discomfort and embarrassment. Be grateful. It will pay to make as few plans as possible this week.

Great personal joy is in store for you and the groundwork might be laid this week.

LEO

July 23-Aug. 22

Hold your horses, Leo. This is not the time to turn many the good things in your life in pursue some pie-in-the-sky dream. The urge to do just that could be strong this week, but the stars say caution is in order. It's okay to plan, but don't take the big leap just yet.

Someone who admires you needs a shoulder to cry on. Be a good listener.

Think about the words to that song you've been humming. They could have very special importance

VIRGO

Aug. 23-Sept. 22

This is a week to think. think and think some more. An idea hovering in the back of your mind could make you rich, but petty problems have been stifling your creative juices. Take time to be alone, relax and have a one-person brainstorming session. It could be the most important thing you've ever done.

A stranger with a dazzling smile could be your ace in the hole. Keep your eyes open.

An old friend is trying desperately to get in touch.

LIBRA

Sept. 23-Oct. 22

An unusual opportunity may be coming your way and you should get ready to pounce on it. Get advice from experts if necessary, but don't waste any time or you'll miss the boat.

A Libra tendency to be too talkative could get you in trouble in the week ahead. Choose your words carefully and get right to the point.

Letting go of an old grudge may be the best solution to a long-standing problem. Don't be afraid to compromise.

SCORPIO

Oct. 23-Nov. 21

Unexpected obstacles may pop up in the week ahead, but you can still achieve important goals if you keep your sights set on those long-range objectives.

A Scorpio leaning toward possessiveness could lead to trouble in the very near future. Strive to be more generous and you will be rewarded.

Don't let yourself get financial should travel plans change suddenly. Just relax and go with the flow in the end you will be pleasantly surprised.

SAGITTARIUS

Nov. 22-Dec. 21

Your Sagittarian generosity is seen by some in your Achilles' heel. Be wary of those who would take advantage of that. Always be a friend to need. But don't be a patsy!

Put troubling thoughts out of your mind and concentrate instead on cheery visions of the fun-filled days you've [illegible] for the summer.

An interesting encounter with a stranger of the opposite sex appears headed your way — and somebody wants to be in your shoes.

CAPRICORN

Dec. 23-Jan. 19

You can turn a temporary setback into a triumph with perseverance, optimism and a bit of help from your friends. Don't let anyone or anything discourage you. Shoot for the stars!

Don't let daily pressures rat you off from the simple things that once brought so much pleasure. Make a vow to slow down — and keep it.

Expect sudden and dramatic changes in your love life. Married Capricorns will likely have to reassess the state of their marriages.

your birthday is this week . . .

Careful, careful, careful! That should be your advice to yourself in the next 12 months — especially in the first and last part of the year.

Be cautious in personal dealings. People you have taken for granted may turn out to be enemies. And others you have never liked much may wind up being the best of friends.

Avoid arguments and avoid commitment, if possible. Don't become deeply involved with new people.

In your daily work life you must remember not to take chances, and the same is true of your health. Let this year be one of slow progress.

AQUARIUS

Jan. 20-Feb. 18

Final exam pressure for self-expression in the days and weeks ahead. You're brainstorming a God-given talent the creativity that cries out for release!

Your Aquarius tendencies on help play and indulgence is appreciated by others who look to you for help and guidance. They know you'll be there when needed.

Gather loved ones around you and restore relationships that you've been forced to neglect. Don't bottle up . . . your natural feelings.

PISCES

Feb. 19-Mar. 20

You've been pushing yourself to the limit and it's got to stop before your health suffers. Take some time off if at all possible. Relax with family and friends.

Luck should be with you this week and there's no end to the ways you can benefit.

Make realistic and responsible plans. Don't be tomorrow. Keep your eyes peeled.

The opposite sex is particularly attracted to you just now and you'd be wise to take advantage.

GUNS GALORE! Police Officer John Persly displays the M30 and Uzi submachine guns for sale.

Police selling machine guns in world's wildest auction

Crooks in New York City will steal anything under the sun. Then the cops who nab them turn around and sell it all to the public — even Uzi submachine guns!

Over the years, cops in the Big Apple have recovered enough unclaimed loot to fill warehouses in Manhattan and the Queens.

The storerooms are crammed full with everything from mink coats to pesky hose, from diamonds to dirty socks.

There's even a life-size wooden statue of America's Italian-born saint, Mother Cabrini.

"People will steal anything," declared NYPD Sgt. John LaBarbera. "Absolutely nothing is spared."

And apparently the cops will sell anything, because all of it not being held as evidence in a pending case can be bought at bargain-basement prices at public auctions.

"We've got everything here," Lt. Herb Willett said. "There are trunks in jars, dead lemons, arms filled with the ashes of the dead. You name it, we've got it here someplace."

Opening a [illegible] in either of the warehouses will bring you face-to-face with cartons of ghastly, blood-soaked clothing stacked next to the weirdly possessions of dead dreams, beams and other forgotten souls who left no one behind to claim them.

But none of that bothers Deputy Inspector John Riggins, the police property clerk who watches over more than $24 million in cold cash and millions more in recovered stolen merchandise.

"I don't even have any sleepless nights," boasts Riggins.

The man who may have a few sleepless nights is Lt. Willett, the NYPD "integrity control officer."

It's his job to worry that the temptation to steal may be too much for some of the 270 warehouse workers who each day come face-to-face with priceless mounds of pure heroin and cocaine. A spokesman for the NYPD added: "For security reasons, we keep the machine guns locked up at a secret warehouse until we're ready to put them up for auction.

"But I can tell you there are more than the two guns Officer Persly is holding!"

Ant juice cures arthritis, say Chinese

There's a sure cure for arthritis, but you may not want to try it. It's ant juice.

According to a Chinese expert, squashed ants mixed with water provide all sorts of great nutrients, a fact well known by Chinese emperors through the ages.

"The juice is rich in trace elements, including zinc, a shortage of which retards children's growth and quickens adult aging," said ant expert Wu Zhicheng, who credits his ant tonics with curing hundreds of people of rheumatoid arthritis and other ills.

In China the bug nectar is big business and special ant farms have been set up to produce it. The Chinese grind the ants into a powder, then mix it with liquid and chop it down. And besides all the health benefits, there's another big plus for folks on a budget. Ants have four times as many calories as an equal quantity of beef.

SIAMESE TWINS

PATHETIC two-headed baby James Rad is fighting for his life, say worried doctors.

A two-headed baby battling for life in an Ira nian hospital has just had a visit from two members of his family — his 13-year-old Siamese twin sisters who are joined at the head!

Pathetic two-headed James Rad, now over months old, has astounded doctors who predicted he would not survive more than a few days. He was delivered by cesarean section in early Decem ber and is expected to die in his infancy.

"His sisters Laleh and Ladan wanted to see him before he died because they feel a strong bond to their deformed brother," said a nurse who examines the baby's care at a hospital in downtown Tehran. "It was very touching to see them all together."

Tragic two-headed James, who is named af ter an ancient Roman god with two faces, came into the world with two spinal cords joined at the neck, two separate nervous systems, two hearts, two stomachs and two sets of lungs. The baby boy has only one pelvis and pair of legs but acts more like two separate babies than one.

His sisters were born 13 years ago joined at the side and back of the head. Surgery to separate them was considered too risky, so they lead a co clocked life connected to each other back to back

Pinned trapper cuts off his leg

Finnish trapper Jan Nortamo did what few men would even dare think of doing when his foot was pinned in the crushing jaws of a bear trap — he pulled out his skinning knife and cut his own leg off!

Then, in an agonizing six-day ordeal through blinding snow and freezing temperatures, the super-human Finn dragged his pain-ravaged body to the near est settlement which was more than 30 miles away.

"I prayed every inch of the way, but I never really believed I would make it," the 40-year old trapper said from his hospital bed in Ravaniemi.

"At times, the pain was so bad I cried like a baby and my tears froze on my face.

"I had struggled for hours to pull my foot free of the bear trap. The pain thought what I would have to do — cut my own leg off — sickened me with horror."

The father of six was following his trap line only two miles from the Finnish border when the bear trap snapped around his leg like the jaws of hell.

"The pain was excruciating," Nortamo recalled. "I heard my bones crack.

"When I finally realized what I had to do, I went about it very methodically. I cut off my pants leg and packed my leg in snow until it became numb with cold.

"Then I jammed my wool cap between my teeth, got out my skinning knife and cut my leg off. Then I started crawling through the snow, stopping every few minutes to pack more snow on my stump. That was what allowed me to keep going."

Six days after he began his desperate crawl for life, Nortamo reached the settlement of Kuusamo. He was given blood transfusions and treated for shock and exposure. Three days later, he was airlifted to his home.

"The docs say I'll get an artificial leg," he said. "But my trapping days are over. It's no work for a cripple."

MEET THEIR 2-HEADED BROTHER

Nursery drama: Sisters weep over baby's plight!

though they don't like to appear in public, the twins were permitted to visit their new two-headed brother. They made the trip in a municipal hospital last week to see Jamsa.

They were permitted to look at him for a few seconds before he was put back in his crib for an hour," the nurse told reporters afterward.

The twins were very emotional, deeply moved by the little baby's suffering. They cried a great deal.

"They have begged their parents to take the baby home where he can live with his family until his death. But doctors feel that release from him would shorten his life."

Doctors believe that the baby has a second pair of shoulders beneath his chest plate which helps to support the two heads and protect the lungs.

But because of the tremendous weight of his two heads pressing against his lungs his doctors believe he could die without the oxygen given him at the hospital.

"In principle it would be conceivable to remove one head but that would be a mammoth task that I do not think is really possible," said a Western expert, neurologist Lindsay Simon of London University. "Separating one head might cut off the blood supply to the other head and result in the baby's immediate death."

Jamsa's mother, who is 20, has been deeply depressed since the birth of her deformed son.

She has no other children besides Jamsa and his Siamese twin sisters, Laleh and Lailan, who were born when Mrs. Rad was just 15. "My heart breaks for my son," she said in her only public statement since the boy's birth.

"I don't know whether he will survive or that he dies.

"All I can do is leave him in God's hands.

"What is meant to be, will be."

— SUSAN JAMISON

SIAMESE SISTERS Laleh and Lailan Rad, shown in a rare photo with their stepfather, insisted on visiting their two-headed baby brother while he is in a Tehran hospital.
